After the initial clauses had been passed as read, "fancy" bread had an innings and Ald. Henley showed his versatility by springing a surprise on his fellow-members when he gallantly told of how he had served his apprenticeship as a concoctor of dough. He explained just what "fancy" bread was, Will Probe and Try to Abolish but Ald. Campbell, Lynch and Gray desired more light on the subject. This was forthcoming from Master Bakers Grant, Marks and Lavery, who in detail, explained that this kind of bread was that made into rolls for early morning delivery and was cooked by a speedier process than ordinary
