THE MOTHER'S JEWEL.

BY MRS. H. F. GOULD.

Jewel most precious thy mother to deck,
Clinging so fast by the chain on my neck,
Locking thy little white fingers to hold
Closer and closer the circlets of gold—
Stronger than these are the links that confine
Near my fond bosom this treasure of mine;
Gift from my Maker so pure and so dear,
Almost I hold thee with trembling and fear!

Whence is this gladness so holy and new,
Felt as I clasp thee or fold thee in view?
What is the noose that slips over my mind,
Drawing it back, if I leave thee behind?
Soft is the bondage—but strong is the knot—
Oh! when the mother her babe has forgot,
Ceasing from joy in so sacred a trust,
Dark should her eye be, and closed for the dust.

Spirit immortal, with light from above,
Over this new opened fountain of love,
Fresh from my heart as it gushes so free,
Sparkling, and playing, and leaping to thee,
Panting the rainbow of hopes till they seem
Brighter than reason—too true for a dream:
What shall I call thee? my glory? my son?
These cannot name thee, thou beautiful one!

Brilliant, Celestial! so priceless in worth,
How shall I keep thee unspotted from earth?
How shall I save thee from ruin by crime,
Dimmed not by sorrow, untarnished by time?
Where, from the thief and the robber who stray
Over life's path, shall I hide thee away?
Fair is the setting, but richer the gem,
Oh! thou'lt be coveted—sought for by them!

I must devote thee to One who is pure,
Touched by his brightness thine own will be sure,
Borne to His bosom, no vapor can dim,
Nothing can win, or pluck thee from Him.
Seamless and holy the garment He folds
Over His jewels, that closely He holds.
Hence unto Him be my little one given!
Yes, "for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

REVIEW OF THE WORK.

Marriage requires the fulfilment of several conditions, in order that it may be really the cause of mutual happiness. Could the veil, which covers the origin of domestic wretchedness be raised, and its true source in every instance disclosed, in how many could it be traced to physical disqualifications and their attendant disappointments. Excesses are always injurious; the gift, which when used in moderation is fraught with advantage, becomes, when abused, the prolific source of mischief, and of greater or less injury to the constitution and vital powers. The particular excesses, on the nature and consequences of which this Treatise professes to dilate, are productive of greater misery to the human frame, than any other to which it is subject.

This Work contains an accurate and complete account of the Anatomy and Physiology of the Reproductive Organs, and of their relative conditions in health and disease. Nor are these the sole contents of the Work, the means of escape, as well as the nature of the danger are pointed out in clear and intelligible language. It deservedly requires the closest attention and study, for what subject can be of more importance than the preservation of health, and the physicial capabilities of which every man should be possessed. It unfortunately happens that the unhappy victim of excesses indulgence and vicious habits, whether acquired in early life, or from the follies of advanced age, while suffering from their invariable consequences, unwisely entertains a fear of applying to the qualified physician, for relief. Shame and the dread so frequently but erroneously entertained that these complaints are beyond the reach of art, alike restrict him, and prevent his seeking for assistance where alone it can be procured. In seeing this, he forgets that accurate discrimination in ascertaining the causes of disease, sympathy with the sufferer, and above all, secrecy, invariably characterize the intelligent and practical physician, and to the medical man, who can show by his possession of the requisite legal qualification that he is entitled to esteem and respect in his professional pursuits the utmost confidence should be extended. DR. LA'MERT has obtained the highest medical honours, as his diplomas testify, and the great extent of his practice for many years is a guarantee for his professional experience, which has reference almost solely to the treatment of these diseases.
