Archdeacon Coughlan.

News has been received from Cork, Ire-

IN ST. JOHN CHURCHES WERE MANY ELOQUENT TRIBUTES PAID.

Reference to President McKinley's Death Generally Made—Memorial Services in Some Churches—St. David's Draped.

From St. John pulpits, Sunday, many expressions of regret were voiced anew the death of President McKinley. There were large congregations. Special services of a memorial character were held in some churches while in others reference to the tragedy was made in the course of the sermon.

In Trinity church Sunday evening, Rev. B. H. Haslam preached from Quatuordecim, v. 2, "Hear ye an another's burdens." He said that the British nation would feel for the United States more deeply on account of having recently suffered a similar bereavement in the death of Queen Victoria. Although it might not be the lot of many to have any individual part in resolutions of sympathy yet by going to the throne of the King of Kings and offering a humble petition on behalf of the bereaved nation and people, they could show their sympathy and affection "so full the law of Christ."

Special psalms were the 38th and 40th. In the morning of the 18th, at St. David's church, also referred to the president's death.

In Centenary church, Rev. George M. Campbell delivered a splendid memorial sermon. There was special music, including the hymns "Servant of God," "We Trust in Thee, O Lord," "The Lord is My Strength," "The Lord is My Salvation," "The Lord is My God," "The Lord is My King," "The Lord is My Redeemer," "The Lord is My Deliverer," "The Lord is My Strength," "The Lord is My Salvation," "The Lord is My God," "The Lord is My King," "The Lord is My Redeemer," "The Lord is My Deliverer."

At the cathedral at 9 o'clock mass Bishop Casey said our hearts were deeply moved by the awful tragedy which had shocked the civilized world. We sympathized with the United States and offered these our condolences. The world amazed at the horrible crime. While our sympathies and regrets went out there was a lesson to be learned—to take care of our youth. The United States was a great country. We could admire a country that could produce a McKinley because he was a great man, risen from the ranks to the highest dignity. But there was also something wanting in the great republic, for it produced the assassin who robbed McKinley of his life and shook the world. He spoke of the youth of Cato and urged his hearers to look after the little ones.

The close of high mass at 11 o'clock a touching tribute was rendered when I. J. D. Landry, the cathedral organist, effectively played "Nearer My God to Thee." The effect was thrilling, and there were few dry eyes in the congregation as they knelt for a last prayer before leaving the church.

At high mass at St. John the Baptist church (Broad street) Sunday morning, Rev. H. H. Mowat, in his sermon, gave a touching tribute to the late president. The effect was thrilling, and there were few dry eyes in the congregation as they knelt for a last prayer before leaving the church.
