ing adjourned, sine die. COLIN W, ROSCOE,

Clerk of Board. Central Baptist Association.

The Nova Scotia Central Baptis: Asso-ciation, comprising delegates from the Baptist churches of the counties of Kingss against their benefactors, contrary to all Lunenburg, Hants and Halifax, met at honor and treaty, these and many similar Halifax on Friday afternoon in the first occurences aroused the British to indig-Baptist church. Rev. W. F. Hall was elected moderator; Rev. Jos. Murray, cannot be justly blamed or wondered at clerk, and Rev. G. P. Raymond assistant. clerk, and Rev. G. P. Raymond assistant.

A very excellent history of the Lower Aylesford church, from its commenced by Longfellow. In his poem, "Evargement in 1828 to the present time, was line," he represents the Acadians as a Aylesford church, from its commencement in 1828 to the present time, was read by John H. Hall, and directed to be published. The report on obituaries was also read by Rev. M. P. Freeman of Gaspersau. Only one clergyman died during the year—Rev. Dr Pryor of Halifax. Special mention was made of Mark Curry of Windsor, who died in February last, and who, among other large benefactioner gave $20,000 to Acadia university for establishment of a professorship.

On Saturday the committee on church statistics reported, and reports were also received from committees on temperance, education, etc. In the evening, addresses on education were given as follows:—Rev. T. A. Higgins, D. D., subject, "The origin and purpose of our Wolfville educational institutions, and the steps or stages of their progress and development to the present." Professor R. V. Lange Ph. It appeals the steps of the subject to the present." Professor R. V. Lange Ph. It appeals the steps of the subject to the present." Professor R. V. Lange Ph. D., subject, "Education been seen upon the Basin's breast, this as helping to a knowledge of Christianity time bearing more worthy colonists- tion. There will be no lack of attractand increase of its power."

The association sermon was delivered on Sunday at 11 A. M. by Rev. Stephen Under their industry and perseverance tractions to young and old than the celemark, in the First Baptist church. Addresses were given at 3 r. M. in this church in connection with the school and took their place. From time to time the on the continent north of Florida; a

Sealed their fate.

Why should some sail the seas, Propelled by favoring breeze, In comfort and at ease, Making gain; While many a gallant crew Sleep 'teath the waters blue—Cans't explain?

Why should the bright and strong, Filled with the morning song, Fade from the busy throng

Ere the day close;

While the bent, tired and worn All day are safely borne—Who'll disclose?

Why should conversion yelen? Why should oppression reign?
Why should earth's fairest plain
Be heaped with mangled slain,
While others stood
Unharmed by the leaden hail
Which swept o'er hill and dale,
Valley and wood?

Why should the poor be poor? Why should the rich secure So much that wealth can pour From her treasure;
While the poor, hungry and chill,
Falls in the tempest wild ?— Unequal measure!

Why should the martyr's crown Have been reserved for some, And the race so well run Be thus ended? Why should the villain thrive, And his lone victim wither, Unattended?

From out this misty haze There's no illuminining blaze There's no illuminining blaze
To shed its lurid rays
On answering word:
So, bowing to his will,
I leave the answer still
With the Lord.

When the day's dull cares I end And the light doth gently blend With the shadows that attend On the night; Of all the twenty-four, This to me's the purest hour Of delight.

Then I love to seek the glade,
And enjoy the evening shade,
While my thoughts I leave to raid
At their will,
As the day-bird seeks his nest
And the leaflest drop to rest
On the hill.

But suddenly I find
Thoughts like this fill my mind:
Why is it Heaven designed
Some to die
In the noontide of their youth—
Souls of purity and truth—
Tell me, why?

Why doth the pangs of pain
Wear out the nerve and brain
Of youths who might attain
Man's estate;
Whose future seemed so bright
Erstwhile the Reaper's blight
Sealed their fate.

My Mother's Grave.

Though far away o'er land and main,
And I may see it not,
My Mother's Grave, I hold most dear,
And sigh to kiss the spot.

The summer sun shines brightly there.

And birds do sing o'er head,
The rain-drops falling, wet the sod—
Green is that lowly bed.

I often long to shed one tear, Above that lowly mound, And whisper, "Mother here's your child" Though echo gives no sound. To me, her voice so low and sweet Comes like a distant lute, Her soft touch on my head I feel, Though loving lips are mute.

But O, the gracious words of Christ Come often to my ear, "He giveth His Beloved sleep" And death brought her no fear.

For in His arms she sweetly rests, Her tired hands are still, The heart so strong and true in life With Heavenly joy doth thrill. Thus memory fond shall link the chair.
Which binds me to that grave,
And I will trust forever more
In Jesus' power to save.
