AN INCOME TAX PROPOSED.

The Ottawa Journal, a newspaper with Conservative sympathies, suggests, possibly under inspiration from the government, that the time is rapidly approaching when Canada will be compelled to levy an income tax to assist in paying the interest on the public debt, and to preserve the equilibrium between revenue and expenditure. The Journal points out that the Dominion revenue and expenditure for the first three months of the present fiscal year have been a million and a half worse than last year, which means a deficit at the end of the year of five or six millions in current expenditure alone. Besides this, there will be a big output on capital account. Last year there was over four millions, and for the first three months of this year has been $841,000. The Journal thinks it quite possible altogether that the net public debt will swell by eight or nine millions by the end of the present fiscal year. It claims that there is no likelihood in the early future of either an increase in meet such deficits, and suggests that Canada should follow the example of Great Britain and the United States by imposing an income tax. The British income tax! it says, brought in seventy-five million dollars last year without touching the poorer classes. The United States income tax is estimated next year to produce thirty millions, although payable only by people having incomes of more than four
