

A CKY IN THE NIGHT.

A trembling voice in depth of night,
When all is still, I sometimes hear;
Its plaintive cry puts sleep to flight
And wakes me with its note of fear.
Its my little buy that calls—
My five-year-old with eyes of blue,
Who through the dark and elient halls,
Says: "Papa, let me go to you!"

know his little heart is filled With dread of something undefined, some fleeting vision that has thrilled His soul and stormed his peace of and in that lonely hour, when all Is darkness and he cannot see, ive him courage as I call:
Be not afraid, but come to me!"

Then may we, too, in lack of light, When darkness, fear and doub Lift up our voices in the night For comfort in our loneliness, To Him alone whose holy name Is help for all on land and ess, And in our direct need exclaim :
"O Father, let us go to Thee!
