Silence Speaks.

Yesterday we drew attention to a remark of the Daily News in reference to a visit of Mr. Lord to Lark Harbor. Mr. Lord is one of the two contractors to whom the Government gave those valuable fishery concessions at the beginning of the year, and which a subservient party endorsed.

Yesterday the Daily News announced that Mr. Lord had with him a Mr. Olie, a fishery expert, who was the representative of a syndicate of American capitalists, and that much would depend on the impression made on this expert in the course of his visit. "We asked the Daily News what its statement meant. Whether it could mean anything else than that the concessionists meant to sell out their concession, or to promote a company; whether or not the Daily News meant that these contractors meant to trade on the fishery concession they had obtained for nothing from the Government either in the way of sale or promotion. This morning the Daily News maintains silence. That silence is ominous and in a way is more convincing than language itself. The Daily News is silent and yet speaks, and the public will not be slow to give a meaning to that silence.

This is not what the public were led to expect, and here is proof of it. On February 16th, the Minister of Finance in the House of Assembly said:-

"The great feature about this project is that it has been entered by practical men, and not by promoters like Wright, Doull, Sahlinstrom and others, who came here with such schemes in the past. Messrs. Trefethen and Lord are men, whose names are household words in the fishing business of the United States. They have been engaged in this all their lives; they are actually operating cold storage plants in New England at the present time, and have an assured market for every dollar's worth of material they will purchase in the Colony, and ship to the United States.

"In Messrs. Trefethen and Lord we have, I think, the right people to do this. They can handle, not alone cod fish, but halibut, haddock, herring, salmon, lobsters, caplin, smelts, clams and other fish."

This admission of the Daily News lets in light on what was dark. The Minister of Fisheries said in the House the contract had been drafted by the Prime Minister and the Attorney General. One of the most remarkable features of that bill was the Government Guarantee which proposed so to subsidize and back the cold storage undertaking that in spite of losses the venture would for a number of years pay 5 per cent. Such an undertaking would have been a gift of a big gold brick to Messrs. Trefethen and Lord by the Government. We immediately exposed the undertaking, and public opinion did the rest. The Government was forced to back down. With such a guarantee in their pocket, Messrs. Trefethen and Lord could have made a large sum out of the concession itself. But this feature of the guarantee was modified. The element of financial risk is not entirely eliminated from the cold storage undertaking. There remains, however, a subsidy and a more limited guarantee instead of an unlimited one.

At present, however, our criticism is directed towards the strange statements of the Daily News of yesterday and its direct conflict with statements given out by the Government months ago. We want to know what it all means.
