

Delivers All The Results The Name Chrysler Implies

The new Chrysler Four, Walter P. Chrysler's latest achievement, carries a name with a world of meaning to the buyer.

Thanks to the quality of the wonderful Chrysler Six, the name Chrysler stands for pre-eminent results in motoring.

Because the new Chrysler Four likewise delivers results unequalled in the four-cylinder field, it bears the same standard of quality and fine engineering as the Chrysler Six.

The new Chrysler Four represents in a very definite and practical sense the application of the same quality and fine manufacture that raised the Chrysler Six to its peak of popularity.

Consequently, the new Chrysler Four—true companion to the Chrysler Six—is already hailed as the most modern and soundest contribution to finer four-cylinder motoring. It is receiving a welcome unmatched for its enthusiasm.

See it to appreciate the beauty that is so distinctively Chrysler. Ride in it to understand the new interpretation it sets on ease and roadability, enabling you to travel all day with no sense of fatigue.

Drive it to know fully its powerful engine—power that means better acceleration, greater ease of handling, and finer performance under all conditions of motor car driving than any four-cylinder car has given. We are eager to give you the opportunity.

What newspapers term "the strange will" of Field Marshal, the Earl of Ypres, a document of eight lines, in which the entire estate of £25,161 is left to Edward Geoffrey Cox, the Field Marshal's solicitor, was inserted for probate to-day. The will does not mention the Earl's widow or the two sons and a daughter. It is recalled that in 1918 the House of Commons made the Earl a grant of £50,000 as a testimonial of services to the nation.

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 11. Commander Eustace B. Maule, R.N., retired, 77 years old, who started from here on May 5 in a 25-foot sloop for England, returned to-day after travelling four thousand miles of the Pacific in a circular course and declared he would try again. Injury to his eyes from the sun's glare and fear that his water supply would run out urged him to return, he said.

"Open All Night"

FINAL SHOWING TO-DAY WITH TWO CHRISTIE COMEDIES.

The final showings of the Paramount picture, "Open All Night," at the Majestic Theatre will take place there this afternoon and evening.

The story is of one night in Paris and has to do with the Six-Day Bicycle Race, an annual feature in the French capital, which attracts sport enthusiasts from all over the nation. Paul Bern directed the production—his first work under the Paramount banner. Read what the critics have to say about this fine farce-comedy, and then "ohay that impulse!"

In "Open All Night" Menjou plays the role of a polished French aristocrat deeply in love with his beautiful wife, but with that love well hidden by the mask of social conventions.

On the other hand, Viola Dana, as the wife, is of a more primitive nature, although equally cultured. The politeness of conventional life does not harmonize with her desire for primeval emotion and caveman tactics in her man. She prefers to be hurt by the hands of the man she loves rather than to be gently caressed and referred to. It is her search for a means to awaken this love in her husband that involves her in a ludicrous situation and proves to her, finally, that the caveman instinct lives in every man, no matter how mild he may ordinarily be.

No two roles could be better suited to the exceptional talents of Viola Dana and Adolphe Menjou than these. A feature of great interest to the motion picture public is the appearance in this picture, for the first time under the Paramount banner, of Jetta Goudal, the brilliant French actress who took Chicago by storm in "Simon Called Peter."

Three big features which will delight everyone.

Save Your Money

The use of common soap for washing clothes is a clear case of mistaken economy.

"Sunlight," the best of all soaps, can be obtained at a price very little above that of common soaps; the use of "Sunlight" is a safeguard for all clothes, whether they be of cotton, flannel, wool, linen or silk. It is a mistake to think that "Sunlight" should only be used for washing the finer clothes, the less money you can afford to spend on clothes the greater the reason that you should use Sunlight Soap.

Your clothes will last for many an extra washing if you always use Sunlight Soap. aug12,28

Ste. Anne Feast is Celebrated

QUEBEC, July 27.—(C.P.)—Forty thousand people thronged their way through the little village of St. Anne de Beaupre yesterday to attend the anniversary of the feast of St. Anne. Of this number many were from the United States.

According to an unofficial report it is claimed that the two men, one from Holyoke, Mass., and another from Bristol, Conn., were cured of their infirmities, whilst making pilgrimages to the celebrated shrine.

His Grace Monseigneur Langlois, administrator of the diocese of Quebec, made his first public appearance since being named Administrator and officiated at the open-air mass, which was attended by a congregation that numbered 8,000.

His Excellency Monseigneur Maréchal, Apostolic Delegate to Canada, presided over the gigantic open-air mass, having remained over from the funeral of Cardinal Bégin, while a number of archbishops and bishops also participated in the event.

The day's festivities were marred by the sudden death of an unidentified man, who expired after receiving the last rights of his church.

"Flirting With Love" at Star Movie To-Night

Superb entertainment is "Flirting With Love," the first National picture, co-starring Colleen Moore and Conway Tearle, which opens to-night at the Star Movie.

Based on Leroy Scott's story, "Counterfeit," this photoplay establishes tenderly the case of Gilda Lamont, played by Colleen Moore. There are perhaps hundreds of Gildas, who, like the Gilda of "Rigoletto," must suffer ignominy for sacrifice.

Gilda is an actress, and, like most actresses, she is confronted with the problem of holding her audience by giving up the drama she loves for risqué farces. She does it because she and her manager cannot eat on the profits of "artistic successes." Only those who see Gilda's struggle from the factory bench to divine dramatic gifts can appreciate the sympathy she really deserves.

To complete her come-down, she has a press agent who surrounds her with shocking tales of his imagination. She immediately becomes notorious, and we see the sincere little creature suddenly transformed into a violently temperamental prima donna in order to live up to her reputation.

Consequently, when she is starred in "The Lost Kimono," a veritable Niagara of fame and fortune begins. But even this is wrested from her within twenty-four hours. Wade Cameron (enacted by Conway Tearle), a psychoanalyst who acts as chairman of the "Better Plays Committee," closes the show as immoral.

"Action" inadequately describes what follows fast and furiously. The camel's back has been broken, and its attempts to pass through the eye of a needle could not be more entertainingly full of humor and pathos than Gilda's revenge upon Cameron.

Will Steamships Disappear?

The Diesel engine, which promises to supersede steam machinery for the propulsion of ships, is not a recent invention. It was produced by Dr. Diesel, a German, in 1897, and since then it has undergone vast improvements.

The essential difference between a Diesel motor and the petrol engine of a motor car rests in the manner in which combustion is effected. In the latter, combined air and petrol vapor are compressed moderately and then ignited by an electric spark. With the Diesel motor, pure air undergoes a high pressure (about 500 lb. per square inch). This increases the temperature of the air to such an extent that when a fine oil spray is projected into it, combustion is instantaneous.

Though a Diesel installation costs more than steam-engines and boilers its fuel bills is less. This may account for the fact that, in the past year, motor shipbuilding has increased 47 per cent. while steam construction has declined by 24 1/2 per cent. The tonnage of Diesel-engined ships now in service is over two million gross, while that of motor vessels in course of construction is over a million tons.

Clocks Without Dials

This care—so simple— means lovely skin

THE irresistible charm of radiant complexion is not difficult to find—as millions of happy women know.

In fact, the simplest of all methods for skin care is most effective! It is no secret. The few common-sense rules follow:

Thorough cleansing!

Each night see that your skin is cleansed of the day's accumulation of foreign substances: powder, rouge, dust. Harmful things that gather in the tiny pores. If they are allowed to remain, trouble follows. Your skin loses its youthful freshness, its loveliness. Often blackheads, eruptions result.

One caution!

Do not attempt this cleansing with harsh methods. They are just as dangerous as the gathered dirt.

F. M. O'LEARY, Local Agent.

Do as millions of women have learned. Use only the soothing, gentle cleansing of Palmolive—perfect blend of beneficial, natural oils.

Each night lather well with it—massaging well into the pores. Then rinse. Now repeat both lathering and rinsing. Then, if skin is dry, apply a trifle of good cold cream. That is quite all you need do.

Only natural oils

From the palm, coconut palm and olive trees come the oils that make Palmolive. No others are used. These beneficial, natural cleansing oils—and nothing else—give Nature's green color to Palmolive Soap.

Do not risk unknown soaps. That would be unwise. Palmolive is so inexpensive that you can well let it do for your whole body, in the bath, what it does for the face.

In one week this simple treatment will delight and surprise you—results apparent to everyone. Obtain a cake today. Begin tonight.

Many-Hued Lions

In heraldry the lion is always a symbol of sovereignty and power. The lions in the arms of England are three, and each is two parts—a lion walking and showing the full face. The first lion was that of Rollo, Duke of Normandy; the second, that of Poitou. These were borne by William the Conqueror and his immediate descendants. It was Henry II. who added a third lion to represent the Duchy of Aquitaine, which came to him through his wife Eleanor. French heralds call the lion passant a leopard, and that is why Napoleon said to his soldiers, "Let us drive these leopards into the sea."

The many-hued lions of inn signs are of heraldic origin. The Red Lion is the lion of the arms of Scotland, and was also the badge of John of Gaunt, from which it probably had its chief origin as an inn sign in England. The Blue Lion was the badge of the powerful earls of Mortimer; the Golden Lion the badge of Henry I., and also of Percy of Northumberland; and the White Lion the device of the Duke of Norfolk and the Earl of Surrey.
