If we are ever to be able accurately to forcast weather we must first have a complete knowledge of the conditions around the Poles. The past history of our earth is an important study, and research in the far Northern and Southern regions has already added greatly to our stock of knowledge to this direction.

What Executives Should Know

A successful organization must b composed of executives who know 1. Detailed knowledge of their own specific department and the principles governing the functioning of every other department. 2. The principles underlying all business procedure. Business is no longer a game of chance but is governed by laws. 3. The ability to think in terms of the business as a whole instead of in terms of their own department.

4. The ability to train their understudies to handle their jobs.

5. The necessary training and judgment to step in as pinch hitters in any other department should circumstances require it.

In order to carry out such a plan he active head of the industry must eve that, if he will devote the time it, he will have executive who will come necessary to use them.—Robert Julius Anderson, in Forbes Magazine. Settling the West
