ANNABEL

THE TEMPTATION.

CHAPTER VII. HE DOINGS OF THE REV. BARTHOLOMEW KIDD.

THE DOINGS OF THE REV. BARTHOLOMEW KIDD.

After the sudden and strange departure of the old and unknown gentleman, Mrs. Dobson replaced in her parlor window the ticket announcing "Furnished Lodgings," which had been withdrawn during the stay of the invalid. It remained there for a day or two without, notice; but one afternoon before the week was out, and while Annabel was absent discharging her teaching duties, a gentle ring at the door-bell caused the landlady to rise from the chair in which she had nearly nodded herself to sleep. In no pleasant mood at being disturbed, as she thought, by some vender of an article she did not need, she proceeded to the door, and opening it quickly, she was about to intimate in a sharp tone the fact that she did not require anything, when her parted lips were arrested ere a word came from them beholding a human object very different from what she had anticipated.

On the door-step stood an elderly man, dressed in black, with a white and very stiffly-starched neekcloth about his throst, a broad brimmed hat on his head, and his eyes appearing dimly through a pair of blue spectacles. In one hand he carried a green silk umbrella, and in the other a small carpet bag moderately filled. Involuntary Mrs. Dobson dropped a curtsey, for the evident elerical character of the meek-looking person on her doorstep cowed her into a most respectful frame of mind.

"Ah—may I inquire if you are the landlady who has furnished lodgings to let?" asked the stranger in a sweet voice, and with the very sweetest of smiles.

"Which I am indeed, sir, Mrs. Dobson boing my name," replied that good-hearted lady, with another curtsey.

"Might I trouble you to see the rooms ma'ma'm?"

"Oh, dear me, sir, yes; and no fouble at all, sir, for a gentleman like yout, which I take to be a parson, sir. Would which I take to be a parson, sir. Would

"Might I trouble you to see the rooms, ma'am?"

"Oh, dear me, sir, yes; and no frouble at all, sir, for a gentleman like 'you, which I take to be a parson, sir. Would you please to step in, sir, and come upstairs."

"Ahem! one word, Mrs. Dobson, before I ascend those stairs, where you are prepared to lead me," said the stranger, pausing in the passage after Mrs. Dobson had shut the street door. "It is quite against my principles," he went ou, "to allow you to remain under a false impression, Mrs. Dobson. And you would be under a false impression if I ascended those stairs behind you in silence, because from the words you have spoken I understand you to believe that I am a parson. That is not the case, Mrs. Dobson. Con. I am indeed an unworthy member of the sacred profession, but I am a dissenting minister, ma'am—the Rev. Bartholomes Kidd, of Zion Chapel, Little Diddleton. So if it makes any difference to you to know that.

"La, sur, none in the world," cried the landledy, with even an increase of animation. "Indeed I am all the happier to know it, for I go to chapel myself."

"A sister," exclaimed the other, making a sudden dash at Mrs. Dobson's hand. "Have I the supreme felicity to greet a sisters This is a providence Mrs. Dobson. Have a minister to know that she went to chapel and not to church. "And if you should find the rooms to suit, proud will I be to have a minister under my roof. It will make me nothing less, sir, than like the widow as longed the prophet that we read about in the Scriptures."

Matters being thus cleared for the ascent of the stairs, Mrs Dobson led the way, followed by the Rev. Mr Kidd, who had no sooner glanced at pailour and bedroom than he emphatically asserted that they would suit.

PETRIE'S

DRUG STORE

Nearly opposite the Old Stand.

NOW OPEN.

Mr. PETRIE takes this opportunity to thank the Public for their large and libe-ral support during the seven years he ha been in business in Guelph.

The New Store is the one formerly oc-cupied by Mr. H. Berry, and lately by Mr. J. R. Porte, as a Conjectionery Store. The store has been enlarged and refitted, making it a much more desirable place of business than the old stand.

Having secured the new store for a term of Ten Years, I hope, with the assistance of the Public, to prevent in the future as I have done during the past seven years, any monopoly in the Drug Trade in Guelph.

By conducting my business in the future in the same upright principle as it the past, I trust to receive a continuance of your generous support.

I am , yours very truly,

A. B. PETRIE. Allan Line
