

That Tired Feeling

So common at this season, is a serious condition, made to lead to disastrous results. It is a sure sign of declining vitality, and the blood is impoverished and impure. The best and most successful remedy is found in

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

Which makes rich, healthy blood, and thus gives strength to the nerves, elasticity to the muscles, vigor to the brain and health to the whole body. In truth, Hood's Sarsaparilla

THE TURF.

WINTER RACING.
A couple of races between local nags took place at Queen's Park track yesterday afternoon. The first was a match race for $50, paced in three half-mile heats. The horses matched were Hueston's Bay Jim and Mann's Cyclone. Hueston's horse won all three heats. An open race for a fancy whip, half-mile heats, best three in five, was won by Brenner's mare, with Coursey's horse second and Sharkey's horse third. There was a fairly good attendance of horsemen.

SKATING.

REPLY TO GRIFFITH.
Bert Thomas says in reply to Charles Griffith's so-called challenge, that he does not consider the city championship of London in question for this season, it having been decided in the three heats, two of which were won by Bert Thomas, but he is quite willing to skate Chas. Griffith a race at any date convenient to both parties and satisfactory to Mr. Lancaster, the manager of the Westminster rink.

RACING IN WESTMINSTER RINK.
Three attractions at Westminster Rink drew a big crowd last night. There was roller skating on ice, a boys' skating race and the finish of the race between Brown and Lea. The roller race, which was called first, had four starters—A. Brown, Whit Thomas, R. Peacock and J. Jefferson. The distance was four laps, and the audience were kept laughing heartily by the ludicrous maneuvers of the skaters. A. Brown came in first, Whit Thomas second, R. Peacock third, and J. Jefferson fourth. In the boys' race four started—Bert Thomas, R. Fortner, P. Moore and P. Sims. Bert Thomas was expected to beat the others by three laps, which he did, coming in first (time 7:20), with P. Moore a close second, and P. Sims third. L. Fortner dropped out early in the race. The race between Brown and Lea followed. Brown started off first and held the lead for the first 34 laps, when Lea passed him,

DEAD DOGS.
New York, Feb. 22.—Eight dogs were poisoned with strychnine in the dog show this morning. There has been more or less jealousy among the exhibitors of pet or toy dogs since the show began, and the distribution of prizes did not help matters. The dead dogs, which belonged to Mr. Senn, are: Belle, the winner of the first prize in the open class for Prince Charles spaniels; Mikado, the second prize Japanese spaniel in the open class for dogs; Japanese spaniel, Yokie, winner of second prize; Ki Ku, third in the open class for bitches, and Chin and Lady De Lena, both King Charles spaniels, were also poisoned, as was the Yorkshire terrier, Brandy. Mr. Senn said the loss amounted to $1,500. Mrs. Senn was almost heart-broken.

CANADIAN WINNERS AT NEW YORK.
New York, Feb. 22.—The American Field Cup at the dog show, valued at $100, for the best American-bred sporting spaniel, was won by Geo. Douglas' Black Duke, Woodstock. The Sackett Cup, value $30, for the best brace of Cocker, Geo. Douglas' Black Duke and Woodlawn Princess, Woodstock. Five dollars, for best American-bred Cocker spaniel dog, Geo. Douglas' Black Duke, Woodstock. Five dollars, for the best Cocker spaniel pup, Geo. Douglas' Bell Boy, Woodstock. Brierwood pipe, for the best Cocker spaniel stud dog, with two of his pups, Geo. Douglas' Black Duke.

HOCKEY.

LONDON AT INGERSOLL.
Seven London hockey players, picked from the senior, junior and bantam teams, went to Ingersoll last night and gave a team of that town some pointers as to the proper way to play the game. It was just a friendly match, and London had a decidedly easy time. They played superior hockey to their opponents in every respect, and came home with a victory of 13 to 4. In the first half the visitors took the Ingersoll goal man by storm, and shot the puck home nine times, most of the goals being made in one or two minutes, while the home team could only secure two. The second half was of only twenty minutes' duration, to allow Londoners to take train for home. It opened by Blackwood breaking his skate, and to even up matters Steven was removed from the London side. The first half was more brisk than the first half, and the crowd became hilarious. Beltz accidentally struck one of Ingersoll's players. The game was stopped, and Fred was in apparent danger. He protested his innocence of any ungentlemanly act, and the play proceeded. The result of the match was, London 4, Ingersoll 2; total, London 13, Ingersoll 4. Davis, of the home team, is a member of the Ayr club, and played with the latter in their championship matches last year. The team were:

SOME MISQUOTED QUOTATIONS.

Mistakes That Are Frequently Made Even by Well-Informed People.
For those who agree with Henry Clay and prefer to be right rather than to be popular, these misquoted quotations have been prepared. It is hoped that they will be of material aid to seekers after truth. It is scarcely credible, but experience has proved it to be so, that not one well-educated person in one hundred can quote correctly Coleridge's line, "Water, water everywhere." The almost universal rendering of the next verse is: "And not a drop to drink." What Coleridge wrote was: "Nor any drop to drink."

An equally well-known quotation suffers in the first line instead of the second. "Twas ever thus from childhood's hour," is the most popular rendering. What the poet actually says: "Oh, what a time that was," etc. This particular bit also has a certain number of quotations which intersect the adjective "happy" between "childhood's" and "hour." "Praise from Sir Hubert is praise indeed," is the condensed and prevalent perversion of Morton's lines. "Approbation from Sir Hubert Stanley is praise indeed." One of the most interesting of the mistakes that are heard every day comes from no less a source than Shakespeare. As generally quoted: "Now is the winter of our discontent," is made to mean "at this present time we are suffering," whereas the following line, "made glorious summer by this son of York," shows that the "now" qualifies the verb "made," and this of course gives the words a diametrically opposite meaning.

The household rhyme that is known throughout Christendom, "Now I lay me," etc., has been in the past the subject of much discussion. The facts seem to be these: In the edition of the New England Primer, which was published in 1777, the first verse read: "Now I lay me down to take my sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep."

In the edition of 1784 the first line was altered to read: "Now I lay me down to sleep," and the remaining lines were left unchanged. But in the 1814 edition the second and fourth lines of the first stanza were altered by the substitution of the pronoun "thee" for the article "the." It is matter of common mistake that Samson said he had slain a thousand men with the "jawbone" of an ass. He said nothing of the sort. In Judges xv., 15, he says: "With the jawbone of an ass, heaps upon heaps, with the jaw of an ass have I slain a thousand men." Even with this text before their eyes, people will fail to notice that the word "bone" after "jaw" is omitted in the last line of the verse. These examples are, of course, only a few of the many that might be collected. They are, however, so common that mistakes which occur in their use should enforce upon the mind an invaluable rule—namely, never use a quotation until you have verified it. In ordinary conversation a departure from this precept may possibly be tolerated, but in written matter never.

A Great Victory Scored.

Sergt. Willison M. Copp subdued by Disease, Finds Victory in South American Nerveine.

Four Years of Doctors' Medic Failed Completely—Four Bottles of This Great Discovery Eked a Perfect Cure—A Remarkable Case from Maritime Provinces.

SERGEANT WILLISON COPP, OF NEWCASTLE, N. B.
The martial spirit is strong in human nature and all delight to learn of successes of the "bold soldier boy." Even he, however, will not always stand successfully the shower of bullets and the dangers of the battle field. Disease will often claim him as its victim. In Sergt. Willison M. Copp, of Newcastle, N. B., we have a trustworthy representative of our Canadian militia—a young man who is ready to dare and do his country. He would not, however, be in the position he is today—a sold under the Queen's banner—had it not been for South American Nerveine. Four years ago he was taken ill with general debility and nervous prostration. Though during this time he strived to improve his condition, following counsel of the best physicians of Maritime Provinces, and taking many remedies, his case grew worse, until year ago he was seized with a grippe, apparently, to prove the last straw to break the camel's back. His system was in no fit condition to stand a siege of this trouble, and his case became so desperate that, to use his own words, "Friends and relatives despaired of my life." Every helper having failed, and at his worst, he was induced to try South American Nerveine. It would have been unfair to most medicines to have given them a trial under such conditions. But this great discovery was equal to the occasion. Like a Wellington, though odds were desperate, victory was secured. Mr. Copp says he has used just four bottles of Nerveine. These have completely cured him; and, knowing the desperate nature of his case, he exultantly waves the flag and says, "This remedy is the best on earth." The sick and the dying may take hold of South American Nerveine with the sure confidence that they are placing their trust in the remedy that will bring them relief. The cases are numbered by the thousands in Canada where Nerveine has practically snatched its victims from the brink of the grave.

A Letter From Mr. Watkin-Mills
The Eminent English Basso.

London, Ont., Dec. 17, 1894.
MESSRS. HEINTZMAN CO., Toronto.
Gentlemen,—I would like to tell you how much I appreciate, from an artist's point of view, the very excellent Boudoir Grand Piar supplied to me for my concert in London, and the magnificent Concert Grand that you furnished me for my concert in the Misy Hall, Toronto. The tone is sonorous, the singing and sustaining quality just what we vocalists appreciate, and I feel that anyone in quest of a really first-class instrument cannot do better than secure a Heintzman & Co. Pianorte. I am, dear sirs, faithfully yours,
R. WATKIN-MILLS.

In this letter of Mr. Watkin-Mills is furnished the strongest evidence of the high position taken by the Heintzman & Co. Pianos among the most renowned artists of the world. The letter speaks for itself.

THE STATE OF TRADE
As Outlined by the Commercial Agencies.

Surprising Success of the Latest United States Loan—More Confidence Felt, but Little Actual Improvement Shown.

DUN & CO'S REPORT.
NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says the surprising success of the new loan and the great confidence it has given to investors on both sides of the water, believe it is the beginning of a real recovery, although Government revenues are still deficient, and that domestic trade shows scarcely any gain as yet. The industries are not enlarging production, nor have prices of farm products increased, but a very important source of apprehension and hindrance has for the time at least been removed. The volume of domestic trade represented by exchanges is not much larger than last year. The failures for the week numbered 208 in the United States, against 238 last year; and in Canada, 36, against 61 last year.

POOR BUSINESS OUTLOOK.
NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Bradstreet's on Saturday, Feb. 23, will say: "General trade in the United States during this week has been more irregular. The success of the latest emergency bond issue has revived confidence in some quarters, but in the general financial situation, what in the general financial situation, Country orders received at the principal centers in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec are of moderate volume only. The results of last year's business are unfavorable in many instances. The outlook thus far is not particularly favorable. In Nova Scotia trade is quite dull in many lines. New Brunswick advises that the heavy snowfall in the woods checks lumbering operations."
