BALFOUR RESIGNS LEADERSHIP OF THE BRITISH OPPOSITION

Retires From Position as Chief of Unionists Because of Views as to Antagonism to His Leadership Within the Party.

London, Nov. 8 .- A. J. Balfour has resigned the leadership of

Throughout the day there had been rumors in the lobby of the House of Commons that Mr. Balfour fiad decided to retire from his position as chief of the Unionist party, in consequence of the divergency of views regarding the efficacy of his leadership.

This afternoon his purpose was definitely and officially

The news of Mr. Balfour's resignation caused the utmost surprise, and in some quarters consternation.

The Unionists do not attempt to disguise the seriousness of the loss of one who is admittedly the greatest asset of the party. It is understood that Mr. Balfour's decision is unalterable. He advances the state of his health as the ostensible reason for his withdrawal from leadership, but there is no doubt that the bickerings in the party ranks was the primary cause. He will remain in Parliament, representing the city of London.

The choice of a successor to Mr. Balfour seems to be between Austen Chamberlain and Walter Hume Long. The former is the Liberal-Unionist member for East Worcestershire, and for some time has been mentioned by the opponents of Balfour as his possible successor. Long represents the Strand, and is a strong opponent of home rule, voicing north of Ireland sentiment.

When she returned the satchel had disappeared. It contained three new, crisp five-dollar bills and some small change, together with a number of bills and receipts.

Apparently someone saw her place the bag there while she went into the house, and they quickly made off with it while she was inside.

The police have been receiving quite a large number of complaints lately about articles that have been stolenfrom verandahs, and they wish towarn all citizens not to leave anything valuable out over night. Many people have lost valuable plants, while the thieves have not hesitated to take verandah chairs when there was nothing more valuable in sight.

A rigid investigation into the cause

London, Nov. 8.—The special militarine care at Wolseley Barracks this afternoon.

The question is considered a very serious one as a regulation militia rile exploded in the hands of Sergt. Andrew Johnson, as he fired at a 500-yard target in a competition between the sergents of the Seventh Fusiliers and those of the barracks staff.

While no metal struck him, Sergt. Johnson's face was badly burned by the exploding gas, and his eyes were affected seriously, it is claimed. A number of men connected with Wolseley Barracks and the Seventh were affected seriously, it is claimed. A number of men connected with Wolseley Barracks and the Seventh were spoken to by The Advertiser regarding the matter, but were not at liberty to make any statement regarding the inmitter, but were not at liberty to discuss the matter over the telephone. It is known, however, that several men who were at the ranges at the time of the accident have been ordered to be in attendance to give evidnce before the court of investigation.
