overshadowing England and Russia sight but M. de Brisson has manifested a desire rather to make use of the British premier's tatal admission than to try and incident affords an opportunity for the eming humiliation of Great Britain, who, has never experienced before. already has her hands full, and will offer an excellent chance for France to regain her lost influence in Egyptian affairs and to make practical use of England's expendiever the bombardment of the unfortunate city of Alexandria, which it is reported M. de Brisson has threatened, will only he following an admirable and recent pre-cedent. For a long time back indications have not been wanting that French feelings are not too amicably inclined toward England; and the following from so influential a paper as the Journal des Debats proves ow small a spark is required to cause serious trouble: "Mr. Gladstone," says the Journal, "in avowing responsibility for the suppression of the Bosphore Egyptien, makes it necessary for France to look to England for redress. France will maintain her rights, and does not lack means to enforce them." The last sentence has very which this court of appeal has attempted much the ring of a threat. Truly Mr. Gladstone's cup of bitterness is full almost to overflowing. He must begin to think he would have been well advised had he followed the counsels of those members of his cabinet who in the slim majority of fourteen, on the recent want of confidence vote, saw the handwriting on the wall and yet time.

The Changes on the Grand Trunk. carrying out the reductions and changes sively upon their earnings, keenly feel the ffect of the recent changes, and because this latter class are old employes, while those mainly affected are new hands, and former know by experience that a strike means the sustesavings. The men, however, intend to respectfully approach Mr. Hickson with a ent of their case in the hope that he may be won over to their side in one or two instances, if not in all. All of which plainly means that the large majority of the unemployed during the past winter that they have no wish to take their chances of losing situations which at the least mean an income all the year round, So far their policy, although selfish, appears wise, but the summary of the position that we have presented offers ample food for the consideration of labor agitators and reformers. In short, it depicts pretty plainly the little real progress that union plainly the little real progress that union ism has made in the last few years against the power of large corporations.

The Coming Contition. probably be a coalition, and for these among other reasons : The franchise and redistribution of seats having been settled certain large causes of agitation are removed. Both liberals and conservatives to the best of their ability, and it may not be that the liberals will always have the lead. By conceding accomplished facts. the conservatives may make the best of the situation. We may ask them, why should they not do it?

The whole development of political reform and progress in England has gone on this line-the acceptance by the conservative party of reforms forced upon them from the other side. The fact of these reforms having been forced is not denied, but the conservative party claims credit for holding back. Consequently the conservative party is always in the wrong—that is to say, it opposes now what it will consent to ten or twenty wars. it will consent to ten or twenty years opinion, embodied in the form of a coalition closest buyer.

at. Is it in Mr. Gladston nead that such a government must be? Is he really preparing the way for it? We cannot tell, but the indications will be well worth noting from time to time.

The policy of the liberal party to first disease has broken out and must be gured to save the life of the patient. We wish the party organs would look at the affair in the same light, and stop nagging at each other for the nonce. The situation is absolutely too grave for supposed instructors of the people to be bandying inuendoes.

War between Russia and England appears more certain at this moment than at reckoning for the loser. When one regards the interests at stake it becomes evident that while England has an immensity to lose Russia has comparatively little. On the other hand Russia has a tremendous deal to gain, while England beyond prestige, and additional influence in India, has barely anything, and even against that will have to be set the vast damage that must accrue, win or lose, to her commercial interests on the seas. Apart from the appalling loss of life that so great a contest implies it is scarcely to be wondered at, then, that Mr. Gladstone has exhibited such unusual forbearance. There is, however, a limit to all things earthly and Russia has, we should imagine, about got to the end of her tether. A little more and England will have her fighting abilities tested to a degree that she has never experienced before.

Cutarrh—A New Treatment.

Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past ix months, fully ninety per cent. have been cured of this stubbor malady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent. of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patent moderness and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that they disease is due to the presence of living parasite in the its ness. Mr. Dixon at once adapted the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. The English conservatives having conceeded the reform amendments, would it be strange if public opinion called for a halt?

Great changes have been made, let us see how they will work. The fact of the passing of a great reform bill, consented to by both parties, is a powerful argument in favor of a coalition government to carry it out.

Another reason is—the danger of foreign war against Russia, a united public opinion in England now would be worth ten times ten thousand men. That is to say—public opinion, embodied in the form of a coalition consented to purchase that will astonish the opinion, embodied in the form of a coalition consented to purchase that will astonish the olosest buyer.
