A level bed, with the head almost as low as the feet, causes an easy flow of blood to the to decorating their rooms with living causes an easy flow of blood to the brain, and prevents sleep. Persons who find themselves restless and unable to sleep at night would do well to place the head towards the north, as it is undoubtedly greatly conducive to health. A hot mustard foot bath, takem at bedtime, is beneficial in drawing the blood from the head, and thus inducing sleep. Sponge the centre, the blood from the head, and thus in ducing sleep. Sponge the centre, length of the spine with hot water for the or of ifteen minutes before retiring. This will often insure a good night's sleep. A hearty meal and a seat neer a warm fire after a long walk in the cold, will induce deep sleep in the majority of persons, no matter how lightly they ordinarily slumber. Active out door exercise and avoidance of excessive and long continual mental exertions, are necessary in all cases of sleeplessness. Where these means fail, such remedies as are known to diminish the amount of blood in the head should be resorted to, of course under the direction of a competent, physician. Opium, chloral, etc., increase the quantity of blood in the head, and are highly injurious. There are should never be resorted to.
