THE PRAIRIE POET.

On the Subject. Every one recognizes that Mr. Davin is an ab'e and unceasing worker for the Northwest. Though viewing matters somewhat from a Regina standpoint, yet he does not nesitate to work for the good of all. At the mass meeting of farmers recently held in Regina Mr. Davin among other things

"And one other question of still more mo. ment he had a good deal of difficulty with the Government in consequence of the intuitive views of law as it prevails in the North west taken by the Deputy Minister of Justice. (A laugh). When first the subject was pirced before Mr, Macpherson, he seemed to think it reasonable that any doubts which existed as to the powers of the Municipal Councils called into existence under the Municipal Ordinance, should be removed. But when, as was his duty, he consulted the legal adviser of all the Departments, that gentleman told him what he told Mr. Scott, what he subsequently told him (Mr. Davin) that it was not desrable for a body to be the first to raise doubts concerning its own powers, and that as a fact they had the power of whose existence they doubted. whereupon he (Mr. Davin) wrote Mr. Macpherson a letter in which he dwelt in strong terms on what he believed to be the mistaken view of the law taken by the Deputy Minister. He also as corresponent of the Leader described what had taken dlace in sarcastic terms, and conc'uded by psaying, "The next session of the Northwest Council ought to be a fruitfui one." He wrote the letter hoping that it would lead to some action in Reguns, and elsewhere and he was not disappointed. Telegrams from Regina and other places were sent to the Minister and himself, thus in the bast possible way the delegates hands were strengthened. But still the Deputy Minister was confident in his views and the result was he (Mr. Davin) had to ask for an

He (Mr. Davin) therefore pressed the matter on him sent him a report of this as well as on other matters and prepared three clauses for the Amendment Act, one dealing with representation and one with appeals. He watched from his piace in the gallery for the bill. He saw Sir John Macdonald again. He did all he could to impress him with the importance of granting an appeal and with the result that the clauses that he (Mr. Davin) had drafted removing the doubts respecting the powers of town councils and providing for appeal were in erted in the mending Act. This was more important -this matter of appeal-than additional railway facilities the restoration of the end of the division, the powers of town councils or representation.
