FACTS AND FIGURES.

The cost of the Militia and Defence of Canada in 1880 was $690,018. In 1911 it was $1,846,178, and in 1910 the outlay of that department was $4,679,956. This did not include the cost of armories, or expenditure for naval service. If we take the cost of the nucleus of the Canadian navy, the "Rainbow" and "Niobe," and the votes for new drill halls, armories, military storehouses, the items in the Marine and Fisheries Department chargeable to the naval service, we have a grand total of over $23,280,000, to which the country is committed for 1911, and we are warned by the Minister of Militia that the estimates in the naval branch may be considerably exceeded. The Auditor-General shows that since 1896, $12,118,150 has been spent in the Militia Department that has been charged to capital account, or, in other words, added to the public debt. The total cost of the military and naval preparations of Canada for the current year amounts, therefore, to about twenty per cent. of the country's total income.
