Toussaint and Lacroix to visit their artificial incubation farm which is situated half way between Chateau Richer and La Bonne half way between Chabeau Richer and La Bonns St. Anne. The party had dinner under a tent, where Mr. Marcier, in the course of a speech congratulating the proprietors of the farm on their spirit of enterprise, alluded to the Mont-morency and Charlevoix railroad as "the first lick of the Labrador line, which will reduce the problem of navigation to three days of sailing across the Atlantic. The present railway policy is destined to atsain great development. In-stead of weakening our attrength in herren stead of weakening our strength in barren struggles, let us unite them for our common welfare. Let patriotism triumph and the spirit weitare. Let patrotism triumph and the spirit of sectarianism be trased from the face of our dear country. We have present bere two elder brothers (Messre. Eiffel and Gre). When they return to France let them say how happy we were to salute in them the France that we cherish ; let them say they found here a people purely French, but loyal to the crown of Britain; that they found a great river, the bauks of which were covered with relice of France. We are French, but we are also the loyal subjects of the illustrious Queen, who has granted us the liberties of which her ancestors had deprived the United States."
