External Affairs Supplementary Papersibanso edt exem of exil bluoda eW matter perfectly clear. We have heard the view expressed that deliberations in the Disarmament Commission might interfere with the all-important process of direct detailed negotiations No. 61/3 ent si ti vrettno Disarmament emantesib no themserge themserged ent tant are to redman a bas noitageled ym to themserged ent tant are to redman a bas noitageled ym to themserged ent tant are to redman a bas noitageled ym to themserged ent tant are to redman a bas noitageled ym to the sergord gaireb Statement by Mr. W.B. Nesbitt, Chairman of the control of the sergord gaireb Statement by Mr. W.B. The series of the sergord gaireb statement by Mr. W.B. The series of the sergord gaireb statement by Mr. W.B. The series of the sergord gaireb statement by Mr. W.B. The series of the sergord gaireb statement by Mr. W.B. The series of the sergord gaireb statement by Mr. W.B. The series of the s aninimaxe vd a Canadian Delegation, in the First Committee, roger erad noise man March 30, 1961. Selb no sets to add to awe iv edit appropriate to the negotiating parties. The Canadian Delegation heartily welcomes the statements just made by the distinguished representatives of the United States and the Soviet Union. The conclusions reached vias a result of recent consultations represent a most important step forward. We are confident that in the more harmonious atmosphere which has been created, further efforts will be made by all states concerned toward the universally-desired goal of of the resumed disarmament. encitations disarmament to peace and disarmament. examine again the feasibility of establishing such further machine

We particularly welcome the statement of the distinguished representative of the United States expressing readiness to resume detailed negotiations on disarmament in July of this year. Ever since the unfortunate breakdown of the Ten-Nation Committee last June, Canada has worked for the resumption of negotiations on this vital subject at the earliest possible time. It is cause for the greatest satisfaction to all members of the United Nations to learn that serious efforts in this direction are now being made.

The decision to continue the exchange of views among the powers principally concerned is very important. I am sure that all my colleagues in this Committee will join with me in expressing the hope that these consultations will result in full agreement on a satisfactory forum for the negotiations and on a clearly defined framework of basic principles within which they should be conducted. Agreement on these important matters is essential to provide a solid and real foundation for productive negotiations toward an effective programme of disarmament.

In the opinion of my Delegation, it is also of the greatest significance that the United States and Soviet representatives have expressed their recognition of the fundamental interest of the United Nations in the question of disarmament. We are gratified that agreement has been reached to inform the sixteenth session of the General Assembly of the progress made in the negotiations. When the negotiations are again under way, we are confident that the negotiating body will give due consideration to appropriate means for establishing a continuing relationship between the negotiating parties and the entire membership of the United Nations.

Whatever states may be included in the negotiating body, the vast majority of the members of the United Nations will not be able to participate directly. It was for this reason that Canada and a number of like-minded states worked very hard at the first part of this session of the Assembly to provide for the creation of a procedure whereby such states could be associated with the negotiations, and could make their views known to the negotiating parties. More recently the importance of establishing a link between the negotiating parties and the United Nations has been recognized in the statement on disarmament unanimously agreed to in London at the Commonwealth Prime Ministers Conference. The communiqué released at the end of that conference makes it plain that "peace is the concern of the whole world", and we are sure that the negotiating body which is set up to deal with disarmament will give full recognition to this concern.