we should all be fair to the hon. member for Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands (Mr. Douglas) and to a representative of the Creditiste party. I would hope that, taking this into account, hon. members would want to grant unanimous agreement to allow the hon. member to complete his statement and also to allow a representative of the Creditiste party to make a statement.

Mr. Douglas (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands): Mr. Speaker, I can say what I have to say in two sentences. One is that I think the invisible guidelines, which the Prime Minister (Mr. Trudeau) keeps insisting don't exist but which the negotiators who sit down with employees insist do exist, ought not to be continued unless the government is prepared to guarantee employees that they will have some protection in the matter of prices, rents, and interest rates. The other thing I wish to do is to congratulate the President of the Treasury Board on having successfully concluded an agreement.

Mr. Gérard Laprise (Abitibi): Mr. Speaker, we are also quite pleased with the announcement made by the President of the Treasury Board (Mr. Drury). I believe those negotiations have been quite successful. We must also commend the two parties, and we believe that it was the most economical way of solving the difficulty.

Mr. Speaker: Order, please. I assume that in the circumstances there will be a disposition on the part of hon. members not to proceed with the motion of which the Leader of the Opposition (Mr. Stanfield) has given notice, and if this is agreed I invite the Leader of the Opposition to withdraw it.

Mr. Stanfield: Mr. Speaker, unless there is unanimous agreement that we could change the subject of the motion then since the motion has served its purpose, I am very happy to withdraw it.

Mr. Speaker: It being after six o'clock, this House stands adjourned until two o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

It being seven minutes after six the House adjourned, without question put, pursuant to standing order.
