

church in Clinton, where Mr. Covell died, had enclosed his grave with a decent fence, and had erected a perpetuating monument at their own expence. He also sent us a copy of the inscription, but the letter not having been in my possession for several years, I am unable to present an accurate copy here.