The Monthly Journal of Education says:—"Although we think there is nothing like copying nature to train the eye and the hand, we should rejoice to see the copies before us take the place of many of the miserable sets now so largely used.

The School Board Chronicle says:—"We think these the most remarkable example of cheapness that has come under our notice, and we speak with a wide experience." . . . "From beginning to end they are good, spirited, and very cheap Drawing Books."
