FIVE YOUNG MEN ALLOWED TO GO

Were Charged With Acting in a Disorderly Manner in a Cafe.

The five young men who were charged with acting in a disorderly manner in a local restaurant a few nights ago, appeared before Magistrate Love this morning, and upon agreeing to make good all damage that was done, and to apologize to the restaurant-keeper the case was dismissed.

It was shown that the cause of the disturbance was the occasion of the visit of a young man from Buffalo, who had a bottle of whisky.

In Buffalo, it seems, it is permissible for people to drink from whisky bottles, in cafes, if they want to, and the young man, not knowing the difference in London, proceeded to do the same here.

The proprietor at once objected and for a few minutes there was a rough house, which ended when the police were called. Magistrate Love warned the young men not to let it occur again.

Again Remanded.
Mrs. Annie Williams, charged with keeping a disorderly house, was again remanded for a week.

Inspector Sanders wishes to take charge of the children and see that they are properly cared for.

Mrs. Williams is not favorable to this, and stated that at present the children are in Toronto, where they have a good home with their uncle.

The case will be investigated, and in the meantime, Mrs. Williams stays in jail.

Two first-time drunks were allowed to go.

The bride looked charming, arrayed in embroidery and sequin trimming, and carried white carnations.

The bridesmaid wore pale blue silk eolienne with allover lace and duchess ribbon trimming, and carried pale pink carnations.

Guests were present from Toronto, Windsor, St. Thomas, London, Chatham and other places.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cut glass water set, to the groomsmen, a signet ring, and to the bridesmaid, a flower girl each a gold bracelet.

A power catechism will also be sent by the Western Ontario Municipalities Niagara Power Union to the ratepayers.

Amusements

Ludlowe as Richard III.
In none of Shakespeare's plays did the bard take more pains to tell his audience how to value a character to look and act, as in "Richard III." Many, of course, have said, and they may be right, that Shakespeare painted Richard in a light to please a nobleman, and brings history to their aid. Be that as it may, he who plays a historical Richard cannot portray Shakespeare's Richard, but should clothe his "straight-limbed" Richard with other lines, and not the wonderful lines of Shakespeare. Richard speaks for himself:

"To shrink my arm up like a shrub,
To make an equivocal mountain on my back,
Where sits deformity to mock my body;
To shape my legs of unequal size,
To disproportion me in every part."

As far as the body goes, nothing could be more precise, while the mind is pretty clearly told in the lines:

"Then since the heavens have shaped my body so,
Let hell make crowding my mind to answer it."

Mr. Ludlowe's make-up as Richard, at the Grand Opera House this (Friday) evening is the Richard of Shakespeare's lines. He is a man of gigantic proportions, and even crooked-limbed as he is on the stage, he still looks the masterful Duke of Gloucester and the majestic King of England.

Partello Stock Company.
In presenting Miss Alice Kennedy to the theatrical public one sees a charming woman of marked ability, who possesses rare grace, that at once endears to the audience from her first appearance on the stage until the final curtain, when she becomes the general favorite from pit to dome. In each play of the repertoire she is suitably casted. Mr. W. J. Partello, who is directing her tour, is a manager with years of experience, and the players all won praise in their respective line of work.

The engagement of the Partello Stock Company opens next Monday night at the Grand, for a solid week, with an elaborate production of "The College Girl," by Justice Adams, a play taken from student life. Miss Keanedy, who portrays Gail Hail-leigh (the girl), the lead is unusually favored by having a part which Mr. Adams wrote to fit her artistic abilities, and a more lovable heroine could not be imagined. The scenery and electrical effects are elements of stage realism. Specialties, moving pictures and illustrated songs are introduced.

Baptized With Water From Jordan

On New Year's evening an unique baptismal ceremony was performed at the home of Mr. G. Smith, Craig street, South London, when the infant son of Mr. C. I. and Mrs. Frogley, of Toronto, the infant son of Mr. Sidney and Mrs. Smith, of Winnipeg, and the infant son and daughter of Mr. G. and Mrs. Smith, of London, were baptized in the name of the Blessed Trinity, after the ceremony a pleasant hour was spent in conversation, and then Evangelist T. L. Belcher, of the York Street Mission, performed the ceremony.

—Woodstock Express: Miss Pearl Ruth Hopper left this morning for London, where she will join a concert party, who are about to start on a tour of the Western States. Miss Hopper is a clever elocutionist, and no doubt will give a good account of herself on the tour. The trip extends as far as San Francisco.
