PRIZES PRESENTED TO ESSAY WINNERS

A pleasing ceremony was held yesterday afternoon in the Germain street store of Scovil Bros., Ltd., when seven happy youngsters received their reward in real Canadian dollars for their essays, written in a competition conducted by Oak Hall on Armour clad clothes. The prizes, amounting to $125, were presented in a happy little speech by Walter H. Golding who said it reminded him of the time he had received a prize for an essay in his school days. It was desirable that a boy should be able to express his thoughts clearly, Mr. Golding said. Speaking as an old advertiser, Mr. Golding said there was a wide field for these boys who would take up writing publicly and instances the case of the man who writes the advertisements for the big United States firm of Wansmakers, who receives a bigger salary than the president of the United States. In concluding, the speaker urged the boys to develop their talent and, when competitions were held in school, not to grumble but write. He then presented the prizes.

K. OF C. WELFARE WORK

$3,715,659.02 Spent in a Year For War Veterans.

The Knights of Columbus announced this week in New York that during the twelve months covered by the annual report $3,715,659.02 was expended on welfare activities for the benefit of disabled and other former service men. For educational work, $3,341,479.38 was spent, "establishing a record in provision of free educational facilities under the management of a single organization for veterans' welfare." More than 75,000 veterans received free training in 120 schools conducted by the knights of 125 cities. Hospital service absorbed $202,589.01, mainly for the provision of tobacco and candy and for athletics, entertainment and other forms of recreation in more than fifty hospitals for disabled men. On employment service $171,896.63 was expended. "The Knights of Columbus take this occasion to warn all that no canvass for funds for their hospital or educational work is authorized," says the report. "Local campaigns, like the New York Chapter campaign for a $2,000,000 building fund are for local welfare work under local auspices, and in these campaigns all workers carry credentials."

FATHER VAUGHN'S REPLY.

Accused of Favoring a Secular Sunday.

London, Sept. 26—(By Mail)—Father Bernard Vaughn has answered the critics who accuse him of favoring a secularized Sunday, in a sermon quoted by the Daily Express.

"God wants human beings to be human, natural and happy on all days of the week. What He hates is cant, humbug and hypocrisy. That," said Father Vaughn, preaching in Glasgow, "is what I reply when I am stung for secularism by some ministers of the Gospel."

"There has been much said of late about Sunday observance and want of observance, but the fact is we are experiencing the swing of the pendulum from a too strict Sunday to one too lax—from full to empty churches and chapels. Sunday is meant to be marked off from the rest of the week as a day to recreate the body even more than the soul. At one time religion had a look in every day of the week. God was wanted all the time. Mass was heard every day, and on Sundays, after the people had given the soul her food they had a good time in the afternoon."

"Then came the days when it was felt under a new dispensation that God loved you in the measure in which you were sad and sorry. That is a libel on the character of Christ and a caricature of His holy religion."

LAYING OF BRICKS BECOMING LOST ART

Technical School May Establish Classes for Suitable Instruction.

A class for teaching bricklaying may be started at the Central Technical School, Toronto, says the Globe, of that city. At a meeting of the Advisory Industrial Committee of the Board of Education, a representative of the Bricklayers' Association said that the laying of bricks was an art that was very much neglected in these days, and that it was becoming more and more difficult to secure trained bricklayers. It was suggested that a class might be started for boys over fourteen years of age, at which they might learn bricklaying. The committee appeared to be favourable to the proposal, and asked Principal McKay to report on its possibilities.
