RECENT DEATHS

Ralph Ernest, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ashdown, died yesterday. The funeral, which will be held tomorrow, will be private.

Her many friends heard with sorrowful surprise yesterday of the death of Eva K. M., wife of Rupert S. Lahey, who passed away yesterday morning in her home, 232 King street east, after a brief illness. She was a daughter of Mrs. Mary and the late Andrew McNichol and up to the time of her death was an active member and worker in the congregation of St. David's church. Besides her husband and mother, one brother, Frederick W. McNichol, is left to mourn. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 from her late residence.

A touching feature of the service in St. David's church yesterday morning was the singing of "The Sands of Time Are Sinking" as an offering by the choir, in respect to the memory of Mrs. Lahey who for many years had been a valued member of the choir. At the close of the service, with the congregation still standing, the Dead March in Saul, and "Nearer My God to Thee" were played by the organist.

Wright A. Edmunston, a C. N. R. employee, died last evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. M. O'Connell, Moncton. He was seventy-three years of age and leaves three daughters.

FUNERALS

The funeral of Eleanor L. Price, widow of John C. Price, of Greenwich, Kings county, was held yesterday afternoon at 2.30 from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. E. Penfield Cliff, 40 Victoria street. The services were conducted by Rev. G. D. Hudson, both at the house and at the grave in Cedar Hill cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs. Elizabeth Cookson took place at the home of her grand-

CANONIZATION OF JOAN OF ARC

Rome, May 16.—The canonization of Joan of Arc, the French national heroine, was celebrated by Pope Benedict this morning in St. Peter's. It was the greatest and most impressive function performed in the historic basilica for several centuries.

The diplomatic tribune glittered with uniforms and decorations of all kinds. From 60,000 to 70,000 persons were present at the canonization ceremonies.

INSURING THE WORKER.

In nearly every business organization where industrial democracy in any form has been tried one of the most important features is the system of insurance provided, the premium for which is, in nearly every instance, borne by the employer. John B. Stetson Company, makers of fine hats, each year, says a writer in Forbes Magazine (N. Y.), presents at Christmas a number of insurance policies and last Christmas five Stetson employees received twenty year endowment policies of $5,000 each.

Other benefits accrue to employees through the Stetson welfare system. There is a pension system in operation without cost to the workers; a savings-fund which pays 5 per cent interest on monthly balances on deposits from 10 cents to $10 a week; a beneficial association in which membership is compulsory; a group insurance plan, a modern hospital of sixty beds administered to the public; a Mission Sunday school of 1,500 members; a Stetson chorus of 150 voices. The big factory combines virtually every phase of industrial betterment work, and under the direction of President Cummings it is ready to inaugurate innovations as their need is made evident.

A Health Week.

(Halifax Chronicle.)

The importance of the conservation of public health is being more widely recognized in the Old Country as well as in America since the war. As evidence of the awakened interest, there has just been held in the British Isles a health week, which is reported to have been highly successful. Extensive programmes, generally covering the whole of the week, were organized by scores of municipalities, and in hundreds of towns where the movement was observed in less spectacular fashion, sound educational work was done by means of pulp and press references to the subject, and by health talks to children in the day and Sunday schools.

The purpose of health week was to impress upon the public conscience: The appalling tale of unnecessary suffering and loss of life; The need for its prevention, and the ease with which it may be prevented; The fact that each person's health is mainly in his own hands; and The delight and power of perfect health.

Improved sanitation, the provision of a wholesome and sufficient water supply, the greater care taken in the inspection of food, dwellings, and factories, and, above all, the spread of education, have rid us of many dread forms of disease. It is the unanimous opinion of medical men that, if resolutely grasped with other diseases can also be stamped out. But individual effort, no less than the steady advances of medical and sanitary science, is necessary before that goal can be reached, and it is therefore fitting that "self-help" should have been the dominant idea for health week.

MAKING PLAYGROUNDS.

Halifax Echo: Every man who is interested in the Dartmouth Athletic and Aquatic Association is asked to lend his aid at the grounds. It is expected that the diamond will be renovated and other necessary work done so that the opening game of the league, to be played on May 24, may go on the best diamond that Dartmouth has had in years. As soon as the grounds are in condition work will be begun on the fence which is to enclose the grounds.

Plant Trees in West.

Winnipeg, May 17.—It is hoped to get tree planting actually under way in the prairie provinces by organizing each small community this summer, and there will be close co-operation with the dominion government's tree planting nursery at Indian Head, Robson Black, executive secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association, said on a recent visit to this city. With the idea of demonstrating to the farmers the advantage derived from planting shelter belts of trees, so faired because they shelter the early grain from the hurricane winds which blow across the prairies, the Canadian Forestry Association will send a "tree planting demonstration car" through Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Instructive talks and motion picture displays of tree planting will be given.

Cat's Whiskers Aid its Eyes.

Why does a cat have whiskers? asks the Popular Science Monthly. This question comes under the larger one—what is the function of eye appendages? Mr. P. F. Swindle has investigated this subject very thoroughly, and he has formed some startling conclusions, which he reports in the American Journal of Psychology.

Your first reader told you in simple words and large type, that pussy's whiskers, wide at his body, were there to warn him of the sized hole he could crawl through, but that reason alone did not suit psychologists, and they have recently proved that whiskers aid the cat's eyes.

Most animals have eye appendages that seem to obstruct their vision. And many of those that haven't any use substitutes—the snake, for instance, continually thrusts out its tongue. But, according to Mr. Swindle's investigations, these obstructing appendages really aid the eye. When an animal watches its prey or stares at a branch that it intends to land on it wiggles its whiskers constantly and thereby rests its eyes. Thus, instead of becoming blurred in time, the object it watches is always sharply defined.

Mr. Swindle experimented with a tomcat, watching him first with his whiskers on, and then watching him after the whiskers had been shaved off. Tommy soon changed from a fat, well-fed cat to a thin, hungry one.

"Henry!"

Mrs. Brown's voice was stern. Mr. Brown recognized the signs of a coming storm, so he prepared to listen.

"I saw Gerald—our boy—smoking a pipe today—actually, a dirty, smelly pipe!" the poor woman ended with a sob.

"Well, what can we do?" exclaimed her husband. "The boy's 17 and has $2 a week pocket money. I don't see—"

"You mean to say that you will allow him to smoke? Why, it's sheer madness!"

Henry nodded. Then, after witnessing the unique spectacle of his wife speechless for once, he strolled off into the garden, where he came across Gerald in a corner with the pipe going full blast.

"Hello, my boy!" he cried. "This is something new, isn't it? Ex—by the way, I've left my pouch in the house. Can you give me a fill?"

"It may be madness, but there's madness in it. I can see Gerald's pouch being quite a money saver to poor old dad."

It was at a popular motion picture theatre, and the ushers were trying to marshal the crowd into the over-full hall. "Room for women and children!" he shouted, over and over again. "Make room for the women and children!"

A plump and prepossessing sailor listened for a while and then broke forth. "Good, gracious! I thought this was a movie, not a shipwreck."
