THE HERONNO of 1812.—Mrs. S. A. Curson is writing for the Canadian Advance a sympathetic sketch of Laura Secord, the heroine of 1812. In an incidental way there is given some interesting information regarding the foundation of Ingersoil. Mrs. Curson says:—Laura Secord was born while yet her father, Mr. Thomas Ingersoil—the founder of the thriving town of that name—was one of those coloniate that haid the material presperity of the English Colonies in America, and she must, as a child, have shared in all the terrors, privations and trials of the war of the Revolution, and also of the subsequent emigration of the Loyalites to the new appendage of the British Crown, Canada. On the invitation of Governor Graves Simcoe, Mr. Ingersoil, together with a little settlement of conceiling, the foundation and also of the subsequent emigration of the war of the Revolution, and also of the subsequent emigration of the Loyalites to the new appendage of the British Crown, Canada. On the invitation of Governor Graves Simcoe, Mr. Ingersoil, together with a little settlement of some seventy families, who looked to him for advice and help, took up land in what now is Oxford County, on the banks of the Thamse. LITERARY NOTES.

Buchanan thanked his nominator and seconder, and said he had never, during the past year, wilfully neglected his duty, and hoped the electors would see fit to place him again in the Mayor's chair. The manner in which the present council conducted town affairs was pleasing. They done business in business ways. Their undertakings had been very numerous and productive of good results, as a glance over the records will show.

will show.

Wm. Watterworth hoped he would be returned at the head of the polls and promised faithfully to look well after the interests of the town.

Dr. Williams and W. Mills thanked the electors for electing them by acclamation and hoped that the council who might be elected for next year would attend to their duties as well as the present one.

Mr. Thompson and Mr. Matheson stated their intention of opposing each other and that they had agreed not to do any canvas—
