CONFESSIONS BY A WOMAN OF FASHION

I am not very old after all, but this new mode of almsness is costing me money and much more time and now when I had fondly hoped after the trial of the tight-fitting skirts of four years ago when you really could not wear anything underneath that would rock up, fashions would be more easy for a woman putting on flesh. "Oh, blent!" Paris gave up the umbrella skirt and I breathe easier. Now comes like a blow the Directorate costume, whose aim is attenuation. And I must confess.

Pardon a reminiscence. I am not so very old, as I say. You can date my most when I tell you that my first vivid recollection is of walking in a country lane with my mother. I wore frocks and bonnets and white socks with black boots; and I was not allowed to pick the wayside flowers because it was not genteel.

Wonderful performance. I had seen my mother dress and it was a wonderful performance. To get into her jersey required the united efforts of herself and her maid, and her hair had to be dressed after she was inside. The skirt was laced in so narrowly near the feet that she could only take little mincing steps or she would trip herself up. Walking exercises was a more travesty. And she could not stoop without the risk of tearing something.

There lumbered up in her old fashioned baroque a dowager—ant in a crinoline! It billowed all over the rest of herself and her maid, and her hair had to be dressed after she was inside. The skirt was laced in so narrowly near the feet that she could only take little mincing steps or she would trip herself up. Walking exercises was a more travesty. And she could not stoop without the risk of tearing something.

A DRAWN BATTLE. "That a scamp of a brother of mine afterwards made pop-gun of the crinoline! It billowed all over the rest of herself and her maid, and her hair had to be dressed after she was inside. The skirt was laced in so narrowly near the feet that she could only take little mincing steps or she would trip herself up. Walking exercises was a more travesty. And she could not stoop without the risk of tearing something.

Someone—I can only guess who—has decreed that we must imitate them in the twentieth century. But the wearing of a sheath gown demands respect and respect that come hard.

AMUSEMENTS.

Great Salvation Army Story at Nickel

A glowing tribute to the practical Christianity as dispensed by the Salvation Army is contained in the Nickel's specially strong feature for today and Saturday, which is entitled "Blue Bonnets," the true story of a dying mother, her pretty little boy and girl, a lovable country couple and a drunken inhuman father. The pictures were taken by permission of the head of the Army in Chicago, and are actual scenes, in themselves of an educational value aside from the moral influence they send forth. The picture is a distinct novelty in motion pictures, something that will make the watcher feel the better for having seen it. Miss Pimperl's Gown is a Pathe comedy of a trunk, a dress, a maid, a burglar and several policemen. Still more fun is provided in the picture The Frightened Neighbors, especially in the scene where the ballet-trade collapses. Last evening's crowd applauded Mr. Cairns' new ballad, "Childhood," to the extent of several encores and Miss Wren in "Wagon You Be My Baby Boy" was heard to best advantage. In spite of the warm weather the Nickel is getting big crowds, for the house is delightfully cool and comfortable with its air shafts working continually.

Crowded Houses at the Unique

Moving picture houses all over the country are closing on account of the hot weather. The situation here, however, seems exactly the same, and the Unique is now entertaining some of the biggest crowds in its history. This theatre has a perfect system of ventilation and the big electric fans make it at least 10 degrees cooler than on the street. Two new song hits for today and Saturday, The Best Thing in Life, by St. John's leading tenor, Wm. Lanyon, and When the Old Mill Wheel is Turning, by Robert Butler. Four new pictures today. The leading film, Traced by a Police Dog, is the best comedy drama ever produced. The wife of a policeman writes a note to her husband telling him she is going on a visit to his mother. As she is leaving the house she meets an old friend and invites him in to lunch. The husband, after receiving the note, calls around to his mother-in-law's house, and finding that his wife had not been there becomes suspicious. He goes to his own house and knocks, but receives no answer, as his wife, knowing that he is jealous, hides her friend in the closet. The husband on entering assures his wife of having company which she denies. His dog, however, leads him to the closet and the man is discovered. The policeman arrests him, but on the arrival at the station he recognizes his old friend. The other pictures, The Arabian Dagger, Mr. Dravell and Uncle's Picnic, each of them worth many times the price of admission.

The Cool Princess

Although these nights are very warm and it makes one uncomfortable to walk, the Princess Theatre is as cool as could be wished for. Eighteen large windows afford the most perfect system of ventilation of any house in the city. For the balance of this week the best comedy bill ever produced in this city will be put on. The Novice Tight Rope Walker is one of the best comedies ever photographed. It shows the experience of a woman who, after attending a circus, endeavors to walk the tight rope. If you have not played for years you will laugh when you see this picture, Middlecome Buttons. This tells us the trouble that the Sydney doctor leaves to attend a patient and the servant endeavors to take his place. The Electric Battery. It shows the experience of a woman who, after attending a circus, endeavors to walk the tight rope. If you have not played for years you will laugh when you see this picture, Middlecome Buttons. This tells us the trouble that the Sydney doctor leaves to attend a patient and the servant endeavors to take his place.

The Music Master at Happy Half Hour

The new pictures at the Happy Half Hour today are all new. The Music Master is a beautiful story picture, founded on the famous Balzac play of the same name. The play has run three years in New York, and while the picture has only been issued a few weeks it has made a tremendous hit in the States. Space will not permit to give the story, but everybody should see it, and no one who does will be disappointed. The Haunted Cheese is a trick comedy picture full of laughter. Another laugh producer is My Wife, Cabby. Half Moon Tavern is a story of old England, the story is a strong dramatic one, and the scenery is beautiful. Prof. Tuss made a hit in his new song In Dear Old Dixie Land, and Harry LeRoy's song, Tell Me Your Eyes, gained rounds of applause for him. Remember no matter how hot outside, the Happy Half Hour is always cool.

Strange Happenings at Bijou

Every picture lover gazes in amazement at the many mysteries shown in the transformation picture. Those attending the "Bijou" either Friday or Saturday will wonder more than ever at Puck's Franks on a Suburbanite and how after the little fellow destroys the careful plantings, plantings and hard labor of a suburbanite in his garden and green-house he restores everything just as it was; the suburbanite's disappearance into the ground, leaving nothing but his outside clothes; the burial of the clothes and the suburbanite's wonderful restoration to the arms of his wife. Then there's Magic Rows, produced at the will of the magician who after transforming them into pretty living girls, Fairy Pigeons, are another of those wonderful transformations. A very beautiful part of these three pictures is their exquisite coloring. Fairy Pigeons shows the cunning of the clever side of a tramp, how he steals a dummy from a clothing store and makes lots of money with it in many funny ways. A Good Hearted Judge shows how a man of the law takes pity on a family of little ones, who while gathering wood to keep their poor dying mother warm, are brought before him for stealing. But you'll laugh when you see Bill at the Party. Bill's ignorance gets him into all kinds of scrapes and at last he leaves in disgust.

A FENCE OF 2,086 MILES.

After five years' work Australia's great transcontinental
