Rolling Mills Burned-Lemieux and Baxte Found Guilty of Defrauding Banque Ville Marie.

MONTREAL, March 25.—Fire Saturday afternoon destroyed the mill of the Montreal rolling mills, containing nine, twelve and eighteen inch mills, and three Grank Trunk cars. Several firemen were caught by the falling roof, and one, named Dussault, quite seriously injured. The loss is placed at seventy-five thousand, caused to a large extent by interruption in the work. The removal of the mills to Sydney, C. B., has been in contemplation, and the fire may hasten the removal.

The father of Trooper Tobin, who shot himself in Stanley barracks, Toronto, the other day, resides here. He has "eccived letters from his son, written a few days before the sad event, in which he complains of not being taken to South Africa. "It is pretty hard," he says, "after having served as a permanent cavalryman for six years, that I should be left there and men taken who were not fit, undersized, undrilled, full of disease and unable to ride. I tell you, dad, it has disgusted me with the Canadian service." Continuing, he declares that be is one of the best men in the troop, and that if Col. Lessard had been in Toronto he would have received justice. "I shall not stay here much longer," he continues, "for I cannot stand it," and concludes by asking his father is he cannot get him something to do in Montreal or vicinity.

James Baxter, banker, and Ferdinand Lennieux, accountant, of the elefunct Banque Ville Marie, accused of conspiring to defraud the bank, were found guilty in the court of Queen's bench this morning (Sunday.) The jury added a strong recommendation to mercy on account of Baxter's age. He is about seventy. Baxter presented cheques at the bank in which he had no funds to meet them. They were initialled by Lemieux, the accountant, and cashed by Herbert, the paying teller, who held the cheques as cash, deceiving the president of the bank by loading packages of $100 bills with $1 bills in the middle. The total animal Herbert turned Queen's evidence. Baxter did a big note shaving business. He came here from Chicago in the seventi rid himself of the attentions of the Chicage police. A few years ago he was arrested in New York on a charge of smuggling diamonds, but escaped from a treasury officer at Flattsburgh, N. Y., and succeeded in getting into Canada again. A PRETTY FAIR ESTIMATE.

What a British Paper Has to Say of Major General Hutton's Retirement.

Discussing Major General Hutton' recall, the London Daily Chronicle says: "It will be interesting to hear Major General Hutton's version of the differences between himself and the Ottawa ministry which have unhappily led to his resignation as commander of the Canadian militia. The distinguished officer concerned is much too popular a soldier for his friends to be content that he should rest tranquil under the aspersions of insubordination and indiscretion which the remier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, huried at his head.

"When Major Gentral Hutton arrived in Canada, two years ago, to take up his duties, he found the 'Canadian army,' as he himself christened it, in a sadly disorganized condition; nevertheless, the new liberal minister for distribution to the forces in the 1 of militia, Dr. Borden, was already attempting, on a modest scale, a reor ganization. Many obstacles were the minister's path, and a plentiful lack of funds at his disposal. Major General Gascoigne's term as commander (also painful in its end) had been marked by a public apathy in matters military. Luckily, Major General Hutton arrived to find the public in a different frame of mind, chiefly as a result of Mr. Cleveland's manifesto Much was expected of the new commander, and those who noped for a complete overhauling of the Canadian militia, and the speedy conversion of 40,000 men from a mere paper ermy to a state of efficiency, were by no means disappointed.

"Several ects on the part of the commander, however, exposed him to hostile criticism, a criticism tempered it must be said, by the general admission that he was doing a much needed work, and doing it well. One of his acts was the deposition of officers on the ground of their incapacity; the case of Col. Demville creating no small stir; this officer being an Ottawa politician and a member of the lower house. In reply to remonstrance, the major general declared that it was his intention to do his duty undeterred by political exigencies On arother occasion he issued a general order that all English-speaking officers should apply themselves to the study of the French language. somewhat risky injunction, though gained him the good-will of the French sreaking inhabitants of Quebec, and a reputation of impartiality amongs them. "The rock upon which the friendly relationship between Major General Hutton and the government went to pieces was undoubtedly his Northwest Mounted Rifle scheme. This plan, upon which the general seemed to have set his heart, won a widespread approbation, and perhaps by the exercise of a little more tact it might have been carried into execution. Last autumn he made a tour of the Northwest Territories, addressing the citizens at Calgary and elsewhere on the necessity of establishing a force which was to represent the actual contribution of the territories to the militia of the Dougnica. The people of the territcries, as well as their representatives at Ottawa, appeared to fall in with the plan, and a great deal of zeal was manifested in arrangements for the composition of the projected force. "But when Major General Hutton returned to Ottawa to secure the necassary co-operation of the government, considerable cabinet opposition was evoked. It was claimed for Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues that the major general had been guilty of what the Americans would call 'rushing' the government, impelled, no coubt, by his zeal as a soldier and his neglect of political and economical necessities. Moreover, no little friction was soon to be occasioned over the despatch of the contingents for South Africa, upon the details of which it was alleged that the government and Major General Hutton, as their military adviser, were not wholly in agreement. Be this as it may, the major general found the Laurier government by ro means as sympathetic or as amenable as he desired it to be in order to accomplish the whole of the ambitious task he had set himself. On the other hand, the Ottawa government found the major general some-what deficient in tact and with too strong an inclination to have his own "Those behind the scenes in CanaWhat is

"There is one other aspect of the matter which will hardly escape general attention. It concerns the major general's successor; for it cannot be otherwise than improbable that there will be any great competition amongst British generals at the conclusion of the war to fill such an enerous post"

SENATOR LEWIN'S WILL

The remaining ope-third of the sidue is left to Margaret Lewin for the maintenance of her three children, as follows: One-half to J. D. Pollard Lewin, and the other half equally between Scrah Elizabeth and Mary Louisa Clark Lewin. When they attain the age of 25 years the principal is to be divided among them in the same proportions.

By a codicil dated August 24, 1896, the sum of $5,000 is left to the Methodist Church of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, the interest to be devoted to the Supernumerary Ministers' and Ministers' Widows' Fund. The further sum of $5,000 is left 10 his daughter-in-law, Margaret Lewin, absolutely.

Of the residue of the estate one third is to go to Percival Lewin as hefore; cne-third to Elizabeth Eliman Cook for life, and on her death onehelf to her son, Charles Lewin Cook, and one-half to J. D. Pollard Lewin. The remaining one-third is left as stated in the will.

By a second cocicil dated 22nd November, 1899, provision is made for the appointment of J. D. Pollard Lewis as a co-executor when he becomes age, and the bequest of $6,000 to Richard Samuel Clarke Lewin is reveked.
