"Mr. Gerard has no authority to make deals or negotiate and can only offer suggestions as to possible solutions, acting on his own initiative, as he undoubtedly has been doing in his efforts to bring about an amicable understanding. It can be assumed there are suggestions that have been cabled from Washington. As to Safety of Americans. "From what I learn from other sources Mr. Gerard evidently takes a broad practical view of the question at issue rather than clinging to narrow technicalities of international law, based on the form of international law which is not in consonance with some new methods of warfare unknown to it. "The safety of Americans to cross the Atlantic within the reasonable limits of restrictions, which in no way affect either their pleasure or business, is freedom in coming and going is the chief point President Wilson is striving after, I believe I can say that Germany's note will undoubtedly grant that. "From the original standpoint, Americans were safely guaranteed if they travel only in American or other neutral ships. "There are indications that the Government in the last 24 hours has decided to go farther and grant that Americans may even travel in belligerent ships without being exposed to the danger of torpedoing if the American government notifies the German government on the sailing of such ships, with a guarantee that certifies they are unarmed, carry no war materials, and will stop for examination when signaled by submarines. "Being American is no protection. "Germany, however, will probably decline to consider any and every ship, be armed or unarmed, or her cargo, as sacred from the U. boats simply because they may have an American aboard. The view is taken that that would be equivalent to nullifying the submarine blockade. "If Germany adheres firmly to its standpoint in that respect, it might eventually resolve itself into a question whether President Wilson will enforce the principle of Americans' right to travel how and when they please in the various fronts is developing regularly and will be willing to break with Germany if perhaps a single American takes passage in some belligerent vessel containing, or suspected to contain, war materials, which is sunk, when other safe means of travel are open to him. "That's the viewpoint taken here.

HEAVY FIGHTING BUT NO GENERAL OFFENSIVE IN WEST (Continued from page 1.) "Our troops made no retreat, and more than held their own at all points. Quiet on Italian Front. Rome, July 8, via Paris, July 9, 1.50 a.m.—An official communication issued by the war office today follows: "No important change has occurred in the last twenty-four hours. Action on the various fronts is developing regularly." ADDITIONS TO PARK ZOO The porcupine captured a few days ago by Miss Marguerite Allen, daughter of Mrs. A.
