esses their school-rooms. This should be done in a uniform manner, and without haste, pushing or any disorder. For lining, a walk a single plank in width may be laid down for each class, if the whole yard is not planked.

2. Pupils should be taught to stand and walk with the head erect, shoulders well back, hands at the sides, and eyes to the front. The habit of walking with the hands behind, while it keeps the shoulders back, unfits the pupils for walking properly on the street, in the drawing room, or in the ranks as soldiers. The experienced authors of How to Teach, say well: "Education is unfinished until the physical powers are brought into subjection to the understanding and the dictates of morality and social refinement. Children should be taught how to sit, to stand, to move, to walk. Rules are required for this; but they need to be only few and simple, and the nice and watchful observation of children renders it quite easy to enforce them, provided they are not capriciously applied. Children must first be taught them, and then never permitted to violate them without admonition or correction."
