

were quite narrow, especially in the Pre-Conquest churches, one sees that a church planned as above just afforded space for a couple of lateral altars at either side of the east end of the

J. C. S.

Tattershall, Lincolnshire

nave, provided that these altars were not of the dimensions of the high altar, but comparatively small, like the altar at Belper, and perhaps square in form, or even upright, like a Roman altar, or a cippus.