EARTHQUAKE DISASTER

Created Great Havoc in Hong Kong

Streams of Boiling Water Issued from Earth

Details of the earthquate disaster at Swatow, Hong Kong, published in the China Mail indicated that almost every house in the Chinese quarter of the town was demolished and that the European district suffered so badly that it will probably be necessary to rebuild most, if not all the houses.

The first shock was felt at about 2 p.m. This seems to have prepared the buildings for their final and complete collapse. The second shock at about 10.30 p.m. brought the buildings tumbling about the inhabitants' ears. Between the two minor shocks were continual and it was only due to many of the inhabitants deserting their houses that the casualties were not greater.

The Customs house collapsed, the Dutch Consulate was rendered uninhabitable and the Dutch consul and his family took refuge in sheds on their own lawn. A Chinese theatre full of soldiers and others, collapsed without warning. It is said that not a single soul escaped, including the players. Whole streets of houses were wrecked and the scene in the Chinese quarter is one of absolute devastation.

Many persons assert that during the first shock, streams of boiling water and jets of steam issued from the earth. An informant states that he walked through masses of debris which was once the streets of the native quarter and saw bodies of the dead in heaps of rubbish. The Japanese Red Cross Society of Swatow rendered valuable assistance. Temporary hospitals have been erected to accommodate the wounded. Many hundreds of persons are homeless.

No deaths of Europeans have been reported. Most foreigners left their houses and took refuge in the ships.

An instance of the severity of the disturbance is that a ship, 30 miles to sea off Amoy, felt the shock distinctly.

It is believed that Amoy suffered as much, if not more than Swatow.

Rippling Rhymes

VANISHING SUBS.

The submarines go subbing forth, manned by heroic men; they journey east and west and north, and don't come back again. The Kaiser sees his costly boats go sailing from his shore; then something frightful gets their goats, and they come back no more. "There is a hole," the Kaiser sighs, "somewhere beneath the sea; there U-boats go, no more to rise, alas, and woe is me! When first my U-boat graft was sprung, I called for volunteers; the chosen seamen then gave tongue to loud and happy cheers. They sailed away to break and burst old Britain's power and might; ach, schweitzerkase and liverwurst! where are my boys tonight? And when to save the Fatherland I now ask volunteers, no sailor lifts a willing hand—I'm facing mutineers! And so I have to make the threat of hemp and gallows scenes, before they'll come, already yet, to man my submarines. Naught can affright the German soul like formless mystery, and I'm afraid of that great hole, somewhere beneath the sea!" And still the Kaiser's U-boats go, by crews reluctant manned; and some grim monster, down below, is seeing that they're canned.
