

STOMACH TROUBLE

Makes the Lives of Thousands of People Miserable.

Mrs. John Holland, of Tarantum, P. E. I., gives her experience for the benefit of similar sufferers—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured Her After Other Medicines Failed.

(From the Watchman, Charlottetown.)

Mrs. John Holland, of Tarantum, P. E. I., is well known and highly respected in the community where she resides. For some years her life was one of misery and suffering, having been an acute sufferer from that common foe of humanity, dyspepsia. A reporter hearing of her restoration to health through the agency of that wonderful remedy, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, called upon Mrs. Holland to obtain particulars, which were cheerfully given, as follows: "About four years ago I became very ill. I was attacked with a distressing pain in my stomach, accompanied by flashes of heat and cold. These attacks were generally preceded by a sleepiness and stupor which required constant exertion to keep awake. I had little or no appetite and food lay as a stone on my stomach. As time passed, I was growing worse, vomiting of food set in, with sudden changes of heat and cold in my feet. I was so reduced in strength as not to be able to walk any distance without resting. To work I dare not attempt. I began to feel that I could not live very long in my present condition. I was reduced in weight to 135 pounds. Two years ago I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before this I had tried various advertised medicines, but without any benefit resulting. I was using the second box of the pills before I felt any benefit, but from that my recovery was rapid. I used in all five boxes of the pills, and have never felt better in my life than I do at the present moment. All the disagreeable sensations that accompany dyspepsia have vanished; I can enjoy my meals with relish, and my weight has increased from 135 to 139 pounds. It is now more than a year since I discontinued the use of the pills, and as I have not had the slightest touch of the trouble in that time, I feel safe in saying that my cure is permanent. I would strongly advise others suffering from stomach troubles to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They renew and build up the blood, and strengthen the nerves, driving disease from the system. Avoid imitations by insisting that every box you purchase is enclosed in a wrapper bearing the full trade mark, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. If your dealer does not keep them they will be sent postpaid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE GORDONS.

Finest Regiment in the World Says Winston Churchill.

Mr. Winston Churchill, in his account of the fighting before Jolanburg in a London newspaper, says: General Smith-Dorrien, commanding the Infantry Division, directed the actual attack, which was made by the 1st and 2nd Divisions, the 19th on the right. The ground favored the enemy, and the bare grassy slopes terminating in rocky kopjes, seemed to threaten heavy loss. But the attack was well conceived, and the advance of Gen. Bruce Hamilton on the left, and that of General French beyond him materially weakened the Boers opposed to the British right.

The City Imperial Volunteers, who were the leading battalion of the left attack, were bravely engaged; but moving steadily with great dash and vigor, they pressed the enemy hard and drove him from all his positions in advance of the main ridge.

On the right, the fighting was more severe. The Gordon Highlanders strongly attacked a kopje, and in spite of the terrific fire, which caused heavy losses, carried it at the point of the bayonet, with their customary heroism.

The Cornwalls supported them. The Boers fought stoutly, and managed to save their gun, but the whole of their position fell into the hands of the British, and the enemy were driven back towards the main ridge of the range.

Night closed in while the musketry and cannonade continued, and the stubborn combatants fought on for nearly an hour by the glare of the burning veil, which shells had set on fire.

The Boers suffered heavily in their retreat, and our troops bivouacked on the captured ground.

General Hamilton spoke a few words to the Gordon Highlanders—"the regiment my father commanded, and I was born in," and told them that all Scotland would ring with the tales of their deeds.

There is no doubt they are the finest regiment in the world. Their unflinching advance across the naked plain on a concealed enemy, in spite of frontal and enfilading fire, which spotted the ground on all sides with bullets, their machine-like change of direction as the attack closed, and their fine charge with the bayonet, constitute their latest feat of arms—the equal of Elend's Laagte or Dargal.

COMMANDEERING A HOTEL.

Mr. John A. Even writes to the Globe: War brings with it strange experiences, and not all are grim. Among those which might be considered as presenting the light aspect was the commandeering of the Grand Hotel by the officers of the 11th division. Myself and friend arrived at this unusually good house of entertainment early enough to secure the last vacant room. Shortly after this had been settled by the landlord we received intimations that our title to the said room was being attacked. Col. Hamilton explained that the staff officers of the 11th division required the whole house. As there were 25 bedrooms in the house and as there are two beds or more in each room it was evident that this was a large order. There were four other newspaper men who had secured rooms, among them being Lord Cecil Manners and Mr. Winston Churchill, both representing the aristocratic Morning Post. We plebeians maintained a very stiff attitude—we had got rooms from the landlord and we refused to budge. Nothing short of the might of the whole British army, represented by a corporal's guard, could move us. The enemy were in a somewhat weak position. If we were deprived of our rooms they could not with any face leave the Morning Post representatives in possession of theirs and they could not summon courage to deprive Lord Cecil and the charming young Winston of their little beds. There was nothing for it, therefore, but to allow us to stop. A guard, however, was put on the door, with instructions to prevent the intrusion of further unbecomingly personages. Very early in the proceedings it was found that it would never do to leave the landlord in charge of his own business. He was consequently deposed, and the officers undertook to supply his place. The 11th division includes various regiments of guards, so that the gentlemen who undertook this experiment in hotel-keeping are the very cream of London society. Indeed, that was the only cream we had in the hotel and it could not be used for ameliorating either the tea or coffee. The first night under the new management is one not to be remembered. The sentry informed us in an awed whisper as we doffed our hats in the hall preparatory to entering the dining-room that the house was to have the honor of dining with the greatest nobles in Britain. The committee of management had invited the Duke of Westminster, the Marquis of Marlborough, and other lofty personages to dinner, and in presence of these we had to snatch our little snack.

Truth compels the statement that our hostess, the lady who had not catered for us in the humdrum way to which we are accustomed. For example, there was nothing in the bread line on the table, and the only meat was a large triangular piece of mutton with soup. Neither were there any potatoes; that incomparable vegetable, without which no honest man's dinner table is complete, was not on our table. When gently asked if we could get some somewhat common luxuries, the waiter replied that there were none. I regret to say that I saw both on the Duke's table, and there was an uprising of the common people and our conversations with the waiter, intended for other ears, had a distinctly disturbing effect on the convives across the way. Next night the prayers of the commons were heard and we had bread and potatoes, yea, and even cabbage. I could not regret the time when we were the guests of the nobility. Indeed, for my part, I think it is an exhilarating sight to see one of Britain's proudest Peers lustily swinging the bell that summons one to dinner. Of course, it has some disadvantages, as I found on the night that my bedroom candle burned out and I could not summon courage to go and ask the Duke of Westminster or be of Marlborough for a substitute. Therefore, I went darkly to bed. I ought to say a word in praise of the management of the bar by Major Richardson, Provost-Marshal of the 11th division. It is true, the people who were turned away from the hotel and could not find a place to get a meal, while a dozen officers monopolized the biggest hotel in Kronstadt, were disposed to talk about hogwash and the pure impudence of some people, and this because so general that after some four days London's finest gentlemen went out of the saloon business, and allowed the landlord to regain possession of his own.

Gauzy Trimmings.

Gauzy flowers and gauzy ribbons and gauzy rosettes or pompons are the natural trimming for one of the new hats of limp horsehair, "eyebled" braid or soft silky straw. These have no appreciable weight, and are a relief in hot weather, which makes a heavy hat a species of torture. Double-faced satin ribbon, beads and fans of velvet, jetted wings and crowns, to say nothing of birds' plumage, make a hat or bonnet incredibly heavy to press upon the brow of a warm day.

AT THE FRONT.

Notes of Our Boys Who are Serving in South Africa.

Wednesday, May 2nd, was a day of rest, the troops waiting for a conveyance. This came and with the returning train of empty wagons went a number of men who were invalided back. With them went Capt. Barker and Lieut. Willis. Capt. Barker's health had been severely tried by the hardships of the march, and he was threatened with fever. Lieut. Willis had come up from Cape Town a short time before the move from Bloemfontein, and he had proved unequal to the demands of the campaign. Lieut. Marshall, of Hamilton is, in consequence of Capt. Barker's departure, the officer commanding C Company. With the conveyance a Company as escort for part of the way.

Sunday, May 6th, saw the regiment camping at Winburg until late in the afternoon. An important event occurred, in the arrival of the draft, which had been chasing the regiment for days, almost for weeks. Ninety-three men it mustered, and Capt. Carpenter, Capt. Winter and Capt. Boyd. To counterbalance this no less than 69 men had to be left at Winburg, the causes being enteric, dysentery, and other complaints incident to the march. Lieut. Oland had to stay with them, as he was sickening for fever. Three other subalterns had had to go back. Frederick Hamilton's letter in Globe.

The Cardinal Did Not Mind.

The following story comes from Rome. Some ladies made their appearance at a papal reception, to the grave displeasure of the Pope, in ball-room. He well knew that the ladies were instructed to apprise those of fenders of their breach of etiquette. The cardinal thus fulfilled his somewhat delicate mission. "The Pope," he said, "is old-fashioned, and does not like décolleté dresses; but I am quite accustomed to them, for I have been so much among savages on a missionary that I do not mind them."

Only a Joke to Him.

He was the bashfullest man she had ever met.

"What would you do," he said, tentatively, "if I were to steal a kiss from you?"

"I really don't know," she responded, with the always hesitating difficulty of a maiden under such circumstances, "but I think I would go into court and testify that you were a kleptomaniac and didn't know what you were doing."

And he only laughed and thought it was a good joke.—Detroit Free Press.

A Pretty Rug.

Every dining-room should have its rug. The quality of this rug must, however, vary with the purchasing power of the individual. Two things ought to be remembered. The rug must not be so thin that it rolls up with every chair that is drawn across it, nor so thick that no chair can be drawn at all. The rug may be laid over a bare floor, a carpet, a filling or a matting. Rugs ought always to be in color key with the rest of the room, or they seem to jump up at you and make a most unpleasant effect.—Harper's Bazar.

White for Baby Boys.

Although the children must be provided with colored gingham or duck for their play hours, yet when they are dressed for dinner, for evening or afternoon promenade, you can but notice how white and pure white children are in the costume. This rule holds good for boys as well as girls. White frocks are worn this season where pale blue or pink or flowered or striped garments would have been used last season. The babies who can walk wear white coats of plique, or on cool days, of cloth or flannel. White muslin and white stockings are also seen in profusion.

The little brother is dressed in white duck or plain white linen. His hat also is white.

All this tends to produce an impression of coolness and spotless cleanliness.

HAIL ANTHROPOLOGY!

What it May Build on Facts About Finger Nails.

The detection of criminals will, it is believed, be much facilitated through the recent discovery of certain curious facts in regard to finger nails. When a crime is committed it is important to learn whether the perpetrator is right handed or left handed, and an examination of the finger nails will throw abundant light on this point. Dr. Regnault, in a paper read before the Anthropological Society of Paris, shows that there is a wide difference between the nails of the right and those of the left hand, and that the nails of the right hand of a right-handed person are broader than those of the left hand, while the opposite is the case with left-handed persons. Dr. A. Minakow has made further researches in the same direction. According to him, the difference in the size of the nails of the right and left hand varies from one-fourth to two millimetres. In those rare instances in which both hands are used equally no difference in size is noticeable. The thumb nail is always the broadest in the case of adults, and the middle finger has always the longest nail, next to it in order being the ring finger, the index finger and the little finger. The nails of the right hand are usually quite flat in the case of right-handed persons, the index finger and thumb being most marked in this respect. On left-handed persons such flat nails are rarely, if ever, seen. Dr. Minakow finally says that there seems to be a curious connection between the circumference of the chest and the breadth of the finger nails, his numerous experiments having shown him that the broader the chest is the larger the nails are.

Strong Bones

In speaking about Scott's Emulsion for children, you should not forget that it contains lime and soda, just what the child must have to form strong bones and good teeth. It's this forming time you want to look after.

Growing bodies must have an easily digested fat. Just think how much of it there is in milk, as cream.

Scott's Emulsion

Is even more easily digested than cream. It's surprising how children thrive when given it.

Don't keep the children living on the edge of sickness all the time. Make them strong and rugged, plump and hearty. Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil and the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda will do this for them.
