OF PROFESSOR STREET, STREET,

TAKE NOTICE—That a majority of the present House of Assembly, during its last Session, passed an Act, which determined that all Rewre due in this Colony, shall henceforth be paid in current money. I do, therefore, hereby Notify Tenants rending on the various Townships under my management, that all Rents and Taxes must hereafter be liquidated in Money, as it becomes due, or it will be rigidly enforced; and also, that no excuses will in fature be received for its noupsyment; or indulgence be permitted them as formerly. Those persons in Arreurs of Rent are requested to come to an immediate arrangement for the payment of their respective Accounts, to prevent my being obliged to have recourse to legal proceedings for its recovery, or ejectment. And all Tenants who have performed labour on these Estates—or made payment in any other way—on account of itents, and who have not been eattled with for the same, are requested to call at my office in Charlotte-town-without delay.

pers; their children are educated as pauper children; while other parents sooner than attach to themselves and children such a designation, will keep their children from the school alloguether—thus entailing upon them the curse of ignorance, if not of idleness, in addition to the misfortune of powerty. Now, while one class of poor children are deprived of the benefits of all education by parental pride or indifference; the other class of them are calcacied as paupers or as ragned echolars. It is not likely, that children educated under this character, will inhibe the sprit of lift. If we would wish them to feel and act, and rely upon themselves as freamen when they grow up to manhood, let them be educated in that apirit when young. Each in the spirit of the Free Echod system. It comes there by refference, but the comes there by refference, but the comes there by refference, but means; and the right of the san to the school is thus as legal, as that of the rich man, says for the school according to his means; and the right of his arm to the school is thus as legal, as that of the rich man, says. It is true, the poor man does not pay as large a tax in the abstract an his rich neighbour; but that does not the less entitle him to the advantages provided by law for the education of his children. The growelling and salvah spirit of pauperism becomes extinct in the advantages provided by law for the education of his children. The growelling and salvah spirit of pauperism becomes extinct in the atmosphere of the Free School. Paiperism and poor laws are unknown in Free School spirit of paupers when the set Schools, would in less than half a century, superseds their accessity in any country.

5. The system of Free Schools makes the best provision and farnishes the strongest inducements for the education of every years of the set of the land. To compat the schools are considered to the part of the land. To compat the schools are considered to the part of the land. The compation of the children from the calcation of the ch monstrous phenomenon.

6. The system of Free Schools may also be commended upon the ground of its tendency to promote unity and mutual affection among the inhabitants of each school division. The imposition of quarterly rate-bills is a source of frequent neighbourhood disputes and divisions. The imposition of an annual rate upon all the inhabitants of a School Section according to property, pats an end to quarterly rate-bill disputes and divisions, unites the feelings as well as the interest of all in one object, and tends to promote that unity and mutual affection which a unity of objects and a oneness of interest are; "selved to create. The care and interest of one will be the carwn, Jankerest of all—that is, to have the best school possible; and time affection light of that school, like the material light of the carwn, Jankerest of all—that is, to have the best school section.
