or Why They Commune with All Saints. Following is a synopsis:— Communion with All Saints tended to union—the strength and beauty of the church, "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." Close communion was a wall not erected by Divine authority, and separating the people of God. Commun ion, significant of atonement, and designed for Christians, was to be in remembrance of Christ, in whom all had a personal interest. The assumption that baptism was an indispensable prerequisite for admission to communion, and the practice of ture. Close communion could not be susby circumstantial evidence, all the disciples had been baptized pre- great a matter of importance as repealing vious to the night the Saviour administered to them the emblem of his body and blood. Admitting, as was done, that it was the practice in the early church to The apostolic precedent did not authorize may be said to admit all who exhibited open communionists because the table was the Lord's, and around it were to gather His people. The ordinance was de-others. Fordifferent denominations there but one of the following courses: To commune with each other's members; to deny that the communion was designed for all evangelical Christians; to deny that any with whom they would not commune were evangelical Christians. The apostles' doctrine authorized free communion. Peter once thought the gospel was for one people, but he afterwards boldly pro-claimed, "Of a truth I perceive God is no respector of persons; but in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted by Him." The scripture required forbearance which was favorable to free communion-Romans xiv, 15. Another thing consistent with it was the practice of the church in the ages succeeding the apostles. The essayist cited numerous instances of prominent Baptist writers in support of this view He pointed out that missionaries after a close communion in heathen countries had renounced it. In closing he said that in free communion was recognized but two characters in mankind; the righteous and the wicked. It placed all Christians on the same road, elevated platform, and destroyed 'There will be free communion in heaven: may God hasten the day when it shall exist on earth in the household of faith." The corresponding secretary's report for third and fourth districts was as follows: Third district—The churches at Eel river, Millville, Campbell Settlement, Upper Hainesville and Southampton have had the pastoral, care of Rev. A.H. Bonnell. Four were added to the church at Upper Hainesville. Rev. A. G. Downey has had charge of the Douglas, Prince William, Bear Island and Lower Queensbury churches. One was added by bapto the church at Douglas. F. C. Hartley acted as pastor of the Fredericton churches. Eleven have been added by baptism to this church and three by letter. The liquidation of the debt on this church is spoken of as the most pleasing feature in the report. Rev. J. T. Parsons has had charge of the Nashwaak and Penniac churches. He has also organized a church at Gibson with a membership of fortyseven. This circuit has finished a fine parsonage at Marysville. A GREWSOME ART.

The Strange Revelation Made by a Floating Corpse.

The finding of an unknown man floating in the Delaware river at Philadelphia finally led to the discovery of a most grewsome trade practiced by one of the discoverers of the body. The dead man, says an exchange of that city, bore upon his arm some perfect specimens of the tattooer's art, and Jacob Zizrachi, a Syrian, who assisted in the recovery of the body, applied for that portion of the cuticle of the left arm which bore an admirable representation of the crucifixion. In the retail was perfect.

This was what most attracted the attenhim the strip of cuticle covered by the were present, Revs. A. G. and William picture. He even offered ten dollars for Downey, who each gave a short address. it, and when told that he could not have it without an order from the coroner he stormed and raved, declaring it to be rightfully his, anyway, because he had assisted in the recovery of the body. The keeper finally told him to call at the morgue again, and that he would in the meantime speak to the coroner in regard to the matter. He being plied with questions as to what he intended to do with the strip of tattooed cuticle after he got it, Zizrachi said that in Morocco, where he had passed the greater part of his life, there were many dealers in curios who would give him from ten to one hundred dollars for such things, according to the artistic finish of the picture. He had made hundreds of dollars by trading with the merchants, and had learned the secret of properly preparing the skin for framing. The cuticle is first carefully dried and tanned and is then treated with a peculiar solution of poisonous drugs, which has the effect of bringing into bold relief the pigment used in the tattooing. It is afterward pressed between two plates of glass and is allowed to stand for a month or so, after which it is framed and placed on sale. Many prominent citizens of the larger cities of the orient, the Syrian stated, had the walls of their houses decorated with these objects. In same parts of Arabia, according to his statement, the sheiks of certain tribes | C. Baptist district meetiupon their backs. After the death of one says that there was no wound or visible of them the cuticle bearing the portrait was carefully cut away and prepared according to the usual process and reverently carried from place to place by the bereaved tribe. Don't take it for granted that all patent a country in the world, whether its people realize it or not, but have men and women in them that are happier because of their discovery and their effects. Think of this in health. Think of it in sickness. And then think whether you can afford to make the trial if the makers can afford to take the risk to give your money back, as they do, if they do not benefit or cure you.

Respecting the Work of the Local Legis

Hon. Wm. Pugsley has resigned the solcitor-generalship of the province and has issued a card to the electors of Kings, thanking them for their support while he represented them. One paragraph is as follows, most of which will apply to other counties as well, especially with respect to public works: "I leave your roads and bridges in better condition than I found them. The colleagues whom you sent with me to the legislature have with myself been enabled to secure for you a considerable number of permanent bridges of iron and stone, which are of great utility, and will endure for generations. You are justly proud of them. When I was first elected there was not a wharf on the whole Bellisle bay, while now the people dwelling on the fertile farms along that beautiful sheet of navigable water are well accommodated in this particular, and the wharves which we have had constructed along the St. John river and Kennebecasis afford some evidence, at least, of the attention which we have given to your In respect to the interest displayed by the government towards agriculture, he says: "Our efforts in encouraging the establishment of creameries and cheese factories, and the general advancement of the dairying interests, as well as for the improvement of the horses, horned cattle and sheep of the province have, I am assured, met with your hearty approval." He speaks also of what has been done for St. John directly and indirectly for the whole province: "It afforded me the greatest possible pleasure, as I knew it would be a matter of satisfaction to you, that the government of which I have been a member lately agreed to give liberal assistance toward the construction of deep water wharves and a grain elevator at the port of St. John. The contract for the wharves has been let, and the work of construction has been menced. The plans for a grain eleva-

With this will surely come the establishment of a regular line of freight steamers from St. John to Liverpool. This result must tend ere long to greatly increase the wealth, commercial importance and population of the city, which must necessarily be of great advantage to your county as well as to other sections of the province."
