The Store that Serves You Well.

THE TEDIOUS GUEST.

By WALT MASON.

Around Spring's house old Winter lingers, and makes himself a bore, nor heads when with suggestive fingers she motions to the door. She hints that he should be departing; he takes his chapeau then and makes a sort of bluff at starting, but he comes back again. He's like so many guests we get, they're welcome when they come, and every cheerful plan is thought of to make them feel at home; but when the time has come for going, we hint and yawn in vain; they lean back in their rockers, showing that they're bound to remain. They hear the clock the late hours striking, but stick tight to their chairs, and never show a sign of hiking until old age is theirs. We love Brer Winter, with good reason, if he would come on time, and rant through his appointed season, and scatter snow and rime, if having shown his lips of weather and sleet from day to day, he got his cheap old traps together and chased himself away. But when he hangs around Spring's cottage with dotard's smile and beck, we feel that some one versed in swattage should swat him in the neck.

Ivory and Blood.

The Tusk is White in Color, But Its History is Red.

The ivory market of the world is to be found in London—in Mining Lane, in fact—and there you will find stored all the ivory that enters London from time to time. Sales are held periodically, and prior to a sale the ivory is placed on view for the benefit of prospective buyers.

The elephant, for the most part, supplies our ivory, and each year, it is stated, some 30,000 elephants have to be secured. The fact is, however, that the great quantity of ivory is taken from dead elephants—animals that have died naturally and have not fallen before the hunter's gun.

When large herds of elephants roam a district you may be quite sure that an elephant's cemetery is to be found somewhere in the locality. To this cemetery all ailing elephants repair, and very often there they die.

It is a great stroke of luck to discover an elephant's cemetery, for a fine haul of ivory is certain to be secured. But ivory is found lying in the forests from time to time. The animals shed tusks now and again and of course these tusks lie as they fall, ready to be picked up.

At the present time there is a great shortage of ivory all over the world. The demand is always greater than the supply. But there are big stores of ivory in the universe for all that.

In several parts of Africa the chiefs of savage races have big stocks on hand, but these chiefs quite understand the commercial value of ivory and never at any time do they put a large quantity on the market. It is doled out in small parcels, so to speak, so evidently these chiefs have a good idea of what a "corner" means in the commercial sense.

Ivory is white in color, but its history is red. It has an evil past, most particularly the ivory that emanates from the storehouses of savage chiefs. These chiefs have often come by their ivory in no recognized commercial way. Usually each piece of ivory added to the store means the loss of human life. These chiefs will commit murder in cold blood in order to secure a tusk!

Those in the ivory trade will tell you that ivory, or rather, the gaining of ivory, has cost more human lives than war, and that is saying a good deal.

Sergt. Nesworthy vs. James Dobbin.
This case was continued this morning, it being unfinished on Saturday. Mr. Squires moved for permission to call further evidence to rebut certain evidence; Mr. Higgins, for defence, objects. Mr. Squires' motion was acceded to, and the witness called and examined by him (Mr. Squires) and cross-examined by Mr. Higgins. Judge Knight summed up the evidence and fined the defendant $50.
In the matter of the Police vs. T. J. Allan the Judge intimated that the costs in the matter must be paid to-day. Sentence is suspended, and Mr. Allan has been given 30 days to dispose of his stock.

Indigestion is Ended Forever.

No Heartburn, Gas, Dypepsia or Headache five minutes later.

Nothing will remain undigested or sour on your stomach if you will take a little Diapiesin occasionally. This powerful digestive and antacid, though as harmless and pleasant as candy, will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you can eat.

Eat what your stomach craves without the slightest fear of indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour risings, belching, gas on stomach, heartburn, headaches from stomach, nausea, bad breath, water brash or a feeling like you had swallowed a lump of lead, or other disagreeable miseries. Should you be suffering now from any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes.

If you will get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Diapiesin you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no indigestion or sleepless nights or headache or stomach misery all the next day; and besides, you would not need laxatives or liver pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh.

Pape's Diapiesin can be obtained from your druggist, and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of indigestion or dyspepsia. There is nothing better for Gas on the stomach or sour odors from the stomach or to cure a Stomach Headache.

You couldn't keep a handier or more useful article in the house.

Funeral Held Up by an Injunction.

TORONTO, March 22.—Five minutes before the funeral of the late Wm. C. T. Shortt was to leave the undertaker parlors of A. W. Miles yesterday afternoon, Alex. McGregor hurried in and announced that he had obtained an injunction from Osgoode Hall against a funeral from any other place than the house of the widow and to any place than the family plot in St. James' Cemetery. Accordingly Rev. James Darling and the 50 or more mourners who had assembled adjourned to the home of Mrs. Shortt at 239 Major Street and proceeded with the services. The body was then conveyed to St. James' Cemetery.

Mr. Shortt's brother-in-law and executor had arranged for the interment in another cemetery.

Flank Steak.

The flank contains a broad flat muscle known as the flank steak, which is a very desirable piece of meat if taken from a well fattened animal. There is no waste to it whatsoever. It is coarse in fibre, but very rich in flavor, and if carefully prepared is a very choice cut. In this cattle the flank steak is not usually removed, the flank being made into rolled roasts or sold for steaks. A rolled roast of the hind flank is one of the most economical cuts in the whole animal. It is good to eat, is cheap and contains no bone.

Scotland and England Played To a Draw.

Hundred Thousand Persons Witnessed a Great Football Struggle.

GLASGOW, March 23.—The international match to-day resulted in a score of: Scotland, 1; England, 1.

A quarter of an hour before the start of the game about 100,000 were on the grounds. The great pressure of the vast host became so great that ambulance men were run off their feet rescuing fainting men from under the feet of the mob. Eventually the crowd broke bounds and scattered around the touch line. Reinforcements of police were hurried to the scene and comparative order was restored.

As the teams were due to take the field Freeman kicked off for England. Then followed one of the stiffest battles for mastery, between speedy and delightfully combined forwards and halfbacks ever seen. By dint of vigorous effort and wrestling and tackling the English attack was overborne.

The Scottish forwards then took a hand in the game and from the throw in Wilson smartly scored for Scotland ten minutes from the start. Nothing daunted, England pursued her with a speedy and thrifty game. Ten minutes later the reward came when Holley, trickily catching up to centre beat Brownlie. A breathing space followed but the forceful work of the Scottish half backs resulted in severe pressure on the English goal which was relieved, and just before the interval Brownlie brilliantly saved.

If anything the Scottish forwards struck a better combination in the second half, Walker being largely responsible. As the result, the game was more evenly contested, each goal being stormed in turn. Brownlie, if anything had more to do. Scotland did well to draw, and many think with its defence England with a bit of luck, should have won.
