How Much Does it Take?

thought otherwise.

But I was like all women convinced against their will.

I think the woman who has a large house, several children and only one servant and who keeps that house neat and attractive and attends to her children's mental and spiritual wants as well as their physical, has good reason to claim that she has about all she can handle.

I call such a woman a genius.

As for the woman without any maid and with several children who keeps things anyway decent, really tries to bring up her children, she is what I call a genius. I know few men who have any job as exacting as hers.

But it does not seem to me that the management of a household with two or more servants to do the bulk of the work, should absorb all a woman's time. True, I realize that the planning and managing and buying is a responsibility. Also I know that there are innumerable things that a wife and mother has to attend to that cannot be included in a servant's routine. Of course there are many things The House Mother Must Do.

For instance, putting away the fall clothes, cleaning out closets, taking the children to the dentist, etc., etc. But it does seem to me that if this were all properly systematized and routed it need not take all a healthy woman's time or energy.

If it does, how can the women who have one maid or none at all, contrive to do all they do?

The woman who convinced me against my will claimed that a certain woman who runs a household in which several servants are employed, is running a business and works as hard as her husband, a manufacturer. Running a House is Not Like Running a Business.

That argument (I have heard it before) always exasperates me. Take a business man running a manufacturing business; he has to manufacture an article that will meet competition, at as low a cost as possible, and then he has to sell it. Grant that running a large household is equivalent to running a factory, does the woman have to meet competition, does she have to sell her article—home comfort? No, her market is guaranteed, and the law safeguards her against any competition. Also she seldom has to manufacture her product with the least expenditure possible.

I wish women would write me what they think about this matter—especially those who do run a home on this basis. I wish they would tell me how much time it takes them and what they think about it. Think what an interesting symposium we might have if they would give us some peeps into their lives.

FOLLOWING THE RULES.

If Uncle Sam appoints a man to work out conservation, I'll follow that appointee's plan, and try to save the nation. Perhaps the rules he may lay down will seem like gentle kidding, but I'll be first man in our town to hump and do his bidding. I'll do what official says, and blithely, too, doggone it; if he insists I'll why so many good people never pay their contribution to the pastor's salary until the third Sunday after the close of the conference year. It would seem that we should trust our ministers more and ask other people to trust them less.

The ministry used to be supported almost wholly by relying upon divine providence and the semi-annual donation party, but so many ministers fainted during the last lap of the morning sermon from lack of nourishment that this practice was abandoned. It has been succeeded by the free-will offering in a pink envelope, and the result is that the minister now rides in an automobile whenever the envelopes come in fast enough to buy gasoline. The envelope system has raised the ministry from penury to affluence and enabled many a minister's wife to dress like a human being.

The ministry does not look for its reward in this life, but is sometimes surprised by the size of the marriage fee. We should have better ministers if they were paid with more regularity and enthusiasm, and the sermons would taste better also.

Your Boys and Girls.

The formation of good health has to begin in childhood if they are to remain good through life. The best of care should be given the mouth of a child. He must not be allowed to suck his thumb, as that has a tendency to throw the upper jaw out of line with the lower one. If he has adenoids so he has to breathe through his mouth, they must be removed or his mouth will become misshapen and teeth will not grind against each other as they should. If they do not grind properly they will be very apt to break.

Children should be taught to wash the teeth often and to scrub them with an up and down motion of the brush. A side motion will fall to remove the food particles which lodge between the teeth. If tartar has collected it is better to take the child to a dentist for no brush will remove it and as long as it remains on the teeth the gums cannot be in a healthy condition. They will be more or less congested, and bleed readily until the tartar has been removed.

A very useful and safe tooth powder may be made at home by taking a fine quality of precipitated chalk, finely pulverized, with a small amount of powdered castile soap, about six parts of chalk to one of the soap. This may be flavored with a few drops of wintergreen oil, sassafras or cinnamon.

Everyday Etiquette.

"How long before a wedding should the invitations be sent out?" asked Gladys.

"Wedding invitations are usually sent out two weeks before the day fixed for the ceremony," instructed her aunt.

"When I receive an announcement of the birth of a child, am I expected to send a gift to the child, or what is the correct thing to do?" asked Miss Business woman.

"No, it is not necessary to send a gift unless you wish, but you should call and inquire about the health of the mother and baby," said her mother.

Ringworm on Child's Head

Caused Great Distress and Spread to Neck and Ears. Cure Was Speedily Effected When Right Treatment Was Recommended.

Grand Bend, Ont., February 13th.—There is no disease of the skin more obstinate than ringworm, and the mother who writes this letter does so fully realizing what it will mean to other anxious mothers to know about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

"This remarkable cure was brought out on her head which looked like ringworms. They were spreading fast, and I tried home treatment, but nothing helped her. I took her to the doctor, and he opened some of the sores, which were as big as the yoke of an egg. The salve he gave me to put on was very severe, and the poor child would cry for an hour or more after an application. For six weeks it continued to spread all over her head, and came down to her neck and ears. She suffered terribly. At last some kind ladies told me about Dr. Chase's Ointment, so I got a box, and the first time I put it on she was relieved of pain, and the second time the swelling was all gone. Before we had finished the first box the sores were nearly gone. I have told all the people around here about your Ointment, and I cannot praise it too much. It is now two years since my little girl was troubled in this way, and it never came back, so you can see she is completely cured. You are at liberty to use this statement for the benefit of others who may be suffering in a similar manner."

Pastoral Letter of His the A

REGULATIONS FOR ARCHDIOCESE To the Clergy, Religious Communities and Laity of the Archdiocese of St. John's.

Dear Beloved Brethren.—We are again on the threshold of the holy Lenten season when the time is opportune for the delivery of a Pastoral Message of instruction and exhortation to the faithful of the Archdiocese. This holy season comes to us year after year with its message of the supernatural and the spiritual to aid us in the midst of the material things of life. It serves year after year to awaken us to a sense of our higher and holier duties to the Creator, duties which we are too often disposed to forget in the midst of the engrossing, absorbing occupations of our daily lives in the world. This year, in the midst of the shadows, sorrows and miseries of war Lent has a special significance for us inasmuch as the spirit of this holy season—the prayerful, penitential, mournful spirit which is characteristic of Lent—harmonizes with the spirit of the world at large. The world as well as the church is symbolically robed in the purple of mourning, sorrow, desolation and distress. The conditions brought about by the great world war would seem to have fulfilled literally the prophetic words of our Lord and Saviour, spoken figuratively of the end of the world: "And these shall be upon the earth distress of nations by reason of the confusion of the roaring of the sea and of the waves. Men withering away for fear and expectation of what shall come upon the world."—(St. Luke xxi, 25-26). "For there shall be then great tribulation such as hath not been from the beginning of the world until now, neither shall be, and unless these days had been shortened no flesh should be saved, but for the sake of the elect those days shall be shortened."—(St. Matthew xxiv, 21-22). Truly there is distress, sorrow, unrest, disturbance throughout the world. Truly there is need for us to turn to God in the prayerful and penitential spirit which this holy season enjoins.

Forgetfulness of God. Whatever may have been the secondary historical causes that led to the outbreak of the war, the moralist viewing it from the standpoint of religion cannot otherwise regard this world calamity than as the result of forgetfulness of God. The world had been growing in wickedness and crime. Never in the past history of the human race, even in its most degenerate days, was there anything approaching the corruption and moral degeneracy of modern times. Unbelief in all its various forms was widespread throughout the world. Peoples and nations openly rejected belief in God, the hereafter and the supernatural. The old doctrines of Christianity were set aside, and the Creator was left out of consideration altogether in human affairs.

And as forgetfulness of God was the cause of this great world catastrophe so also in the return to this and in the acceptance of His teaching as embodied in the great Christian code of morality lies the only hope for the future, the only hope of bringing about the peace which we all desire, the only hope of solving satis-
