SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

HE GOT WHAT HE EARNED.

How often when we are indignant at the conduct of other people toward us we would find out, if we could see the whole thing in an impersonal way, that we are just what we had earned.

The family of a friend of mine, whose anyone is in, or there is a anxiety about, the rest of the family always say: "Don't let father worry about this consideration?"

He told the truth, it is con- sideration for their own feelings not his. For father is the most lu- cious, depressing, abnormally an- imative person when anything wrong who ever existed (I have family's affidavit to that fact).

Once happened to be in the home he was told that his married daughter had the gripe (he had to be told it because he overheard a tele- phone conversation between on this subject). His face brightened out, a mile and he immediately began to ply his informant with innumerable ques- tions.

"Will it be pneumonia?"

"Was it really the grip, or some- thing worse?" "Did they think it would be apt to develop into pneu- monia?" "Had they sent the child- ren away?" "et cetera." Then for the rest of the afternoon he went about looking lugubrious, and almost, one might say, aggrieved. After I had seen the shadow he had cast about the house I did not wonder at his family feeling about telling him anything that is likely to make him anxious. Needless to say, the mother was just as anxious, but she does not act that way about her anxieties.

Of course that man simply gets what he has earned when things are kept from him but you never could

A Spanish Fleet Destroyed.

Helped Make Her Decentful.

Again I once knew a woman who was naturally very truthful and honest and open in all her ways. She married a man who had a very irri- table temper and a way of blaming her to an exaggerated extent not only for her faults and mistakes but for many of the inevitable annoyances and mishaps of daily life which something in the house was broken, or when a bill was larger than he expected. The result has been that she developed a habit of deceit to- ward him because she is high strung and sensitive and cannot stand up against this irritability. He is much displeased when he finds out some of these small deceptions. Yet he himself has unquestionably done much to warrant this treatment (I will not say he should bear the whole respon- sibility for a wrong character but would have stood up against him).

So it goes, an eternal play and in- ter-play of characteristics and man- ners and habits. What study in the world would be more interesting and what more intricate and eternally baffling?

The most remarkable naval battle fought during the Dutch War of In- dependence was that in the Bay of Gibraltar in 1607, when Heemskerck attacked the Spaniards in their own waters. The Dutch Admiral, whom the States General had sent to the Spanish coast with general instructions, found an opportunity for mes- saging himself with twenty-six small vessels against the Spanish war fleet, which in the Bay, and on the lookout for Dutch traders from the Levant, Dutch vessels sailed into the Bay on April 25, the Spanish Admiral, who had fought with eminent success at Lepanto, nearly six and thirty years before, inquired of a Dutch prisoner whom he had on board, what those vessels were, and was much amused when he was informed that they were certainly Dutch, and that they were coming to attack him. The battle com- menced and was soon over; both the admirals being killed, but the Spanish fleet was totally destroyed, the crews and the soldiers put to the sword, and Spain was pretty well convinced that the war, which lasted for over forty years, would not be crowned by any final victory of hers. Victories as complete and as crushing as this one made the restoration of Spanish in- fluence more than ever a remote con- tingency. Holland had swarms of men of the stamp of Heemskerck, and when one of their sea kings met his death, there were dozens ready to take his place.

Rod and Gun.

Sportsmen and lovers of the great out of doors will not want to miss the MAY NUMBER OF ROD AND GUN IN CANADA, which contains a wealth of attractive features. There is a short story masterpiece by the well known fiction writer, Harry M. Moore. It is among the best Mr. Moore's little pen has produced and those who read it will not forget it quickly. There are other stories, including "The Imp of the Trail" by F. V. Williams, and "An Angler's Dream" by I. Todd. A trio of top-notch articles will also be found. C. N. A. Irwin contributes an interesting illustrated article "Hunting the Rocky Mountain Goat," while Donnycastle Dal's article is well up to the usual high standard of all his work. The magazine also contains the first announcement of the new photographic department, which will doubtless prove a popular feature. The Guns and Ammunition department and Fishing Notes are particularly interesting and bright, while A. Bryan Williams and J. W. Wilson contribute two splendid articles, in "Rod and Gun Notes in B.C." ROD AND GUN IN CANADA is published monthly by W. J. Taylor, Limited, at Woodstock, Ontario.

Just Folks

THE FAIRY AND THE ROBIN.
(Written especially for a little friend.)
A fairy and a robin, a pair of mignonettes.
Beside a bed of mignonettes.
The robin bowed and raised his hat,
And smiled a smile as wide as that—
Then said: "Miss Fairy, I declare,
I'd kiss you, only I don't dare."

The fairy curtsied low and said:
"Your breast is such a lovely red,
And you are such a handsome thing,
I'd gladly kiss you now, but I
May only kiss a butterfly."

The robin spoke a silly word:
"I'm sorry I was born a bird!"
Were I a fairy-man instead,
Then you and I might some day wed."
The fairy laughed and said: "My dear,
God had to have some robing here."

"Be glad you're what you are and sing
And cheer the people in the Spring,
Play with children as I'm told,
And you bring joy to young and old,
And it seems always strange to me
I'm one the old folks never see."

The robin spoke: "Perhaps it's best,
I'll sing my songs and show my breast
And be a robin, and you stay
And share in all the children's play.
God bless us both, so let us try
To do our duty—you and I."

How do I know they said these things?
I saw the robin spread his wings,
I saw the fairy standing up
Upon a golden buttercup.
I hid myself behind a wall
And listened close and heard it all.

Fashions and Fads.

With the return of short sleeves comes the increased angle of brace- lets.

The average evening gown has no sleeves, but often shows shoulder dra- pery.

There is often a general tendency toward a sleeve which fits closely at the wrist.

Puffs of crisp organdie edged with black trim of frock of white lawn dot- ted with black.

When your head is dull and heavy.

Your tongue lured, your bowels costive, when you have no ap- petite for food, no strength for work and no interest in life, you need Mackay's Syrup, which con- tains medicinal extracts of more than ten different roots, herbs and leaves, which are especially beneficial upon the digestive or- gans. Sold in 50c. and $1.00 bottles at drug stores. — 4-21
