

"SALADA"

TEA

Truly delightful
Superb flavor
Deliciously fresh
Finest of all teas.

LORD MORDEN'S DAUGHTER OR— THE TRAGEDY OF THE CEDARS.

CHAPTER III.

Just then there was a soft ripple on the keys of a piano in the room below them, and Captain Deane paused in the reply he was about to make. "That's Dora," he said, "my granddaughter. I do not want any music now, it disturbs me. There she goes," he added, his face turning white, for Dora had commenced to sing, and this is what she sang:

"Take back the sigh, thy lips of art In passion's moment breathe to me. Yet, no—it must not—will not, part, 'Tis now the life-breath of my heart, And has become too pure for thee!"

"Take back the kiss, that faithless sigh, With all the warmth of truth impressed; Yet no—the fatal kiss may lie, Upon thy lips its sweets would die, Or bloom to make a rival bliss!"

"Take back the vows that, night and day, My heart received, I thought, from thine; Yet, no—allow them still to stay, They might some other heart betray, As sweetly as they've ruined mine!"

"That is a beautiful song," remarked Locksley, feelingly, as the last note died away. "Your granddaughter sings well. There was a mingling of despair and scorn—"

"Confound it!" ejaculated the captain, testily. "She shows little sense or sympathy to play the squall right under my feet at a time like this. Rap the floor, Mr. Locksley—stamp upon it, and she will understand that I am annoyed."

"I will step downstairs, and speak to Miss Deane," began Locksley, but he was promptly interrupted by the old seaman.

"You will do nothing of the kind, sir! Rap the floor with a stick, or anything else that is handy. That will be quite sufficient. My granddaughter has been commanded not to speak to you again, and will have no use for any of your flattering speeches."

Miss Deane rippled off another prelude, but the music ceased abruptly, for Edmund Locksley had stamped violently with his heel on the bedroom floor.

It was a cruel thing to do, but how could he avoid it?

"Thank you," said Captain Deane; "I can't think what on earth prompted her to play that music. But she is a good girl, and will not do it again, now that she knows I am vexed."

Locksley sat down, feeling anything but pleased with himself, and resolved to beg Miss Deane's pardon upon the very first opportunity. Of course, she knew who it was who had so rudely interrupted her, even if her grandfather had ordered it.

"The song," continued the captain, "was a favorite of her dear mother's—my only daughter. I cannot blame her for being fond of it, but it seems like a woman that she should hit upon it while you are here."

Dora. I was at home very little in those days, and she was left, help alone with Esther, and I never dreamed of evil. But upon returning from a twelve-months' cruise, the last voyage I ever made, I found that my child, the very apple of my eye, was gone. She had been wooed and won by a rascal who bore a tittle, and he came as you came—was drifted ashore during a storm. He called himself Mr. Russell, and pretended to be an artist, but he was in reality Lord Morden—Lord Alfred Morden.

"My child wrote to me from St. Petersburg. She was married, and happy, but was not aware of her husband's real name and aristocratic connections. I was filled with vague uneasiness, and blamed her for not waiting for my advice before rushing into unknown perils. But the young will have their way in what they are pleased to call love affairs."

"One, two, three years passed, and then my poor darling came home with little Dora, a baby in her arms. She was richly dressed, wore priceless jewelry, and had money without stint, but there was the stamp of despair in her face. Her heart was broken."

"For days she would tell me nothing. His lordship had always treated her kindly, but they had mutually agreed to separate—she was to have the baby girl, and my lord to care for their boy—now a youngster of two years."

"I would have interfered—I would have demanded some satisfaction from the cold-blooded scoundrel, only for my darling's sake. The very mention of such intentions filled her with terror, and at last it was evident that she was drifting out of life like a fading flower."

"With her last breath she besought me and Esther to watch over her child lest she be deceived by some smooth-tongued, titled scoundrel, as her mother had been. And we called the little one by her mother's name; for in my heart I feel that she had no legal right to that which her father bears."

"That is my story, Mr. Locksley, and you can now gauge my feelings—you can judge why I was so annoyed, so angered, by your appearance here, for the destroyer of my child came in the same way. I know not what has become of Lord Morden. He has never once inquired about his wife or daughter, but I have heard that the boy, Dora's brother, is dead."

"Now, I shall be glad, sir, when you are gone, for my granddaughter is not used to the ways of your grand gentlemen from the great city. It is part of your education to pay every woman a meaningless compliment, and turn their silly heads."

"I have chosen a husband for Dora in my station of life—a man of sterling worth, who will take all the nonsensical romance out of her—a man who knows her story, but will guard it from her as sacredly as I have done. In a year or so, Mr. Locksley, I may be able to welcome you, for I hope that Dora will then be married, and I shall be relieved of a burden that haunts my sleeping and waking dreams. I shall have done my duty by my unfortunate daughter's child."

"And is Miss Deane really engaged to be married?" asked Locksley, hoarsely.

"She has consented to wed a sterling man—a man who can provide for her comfortably, and who cares for her in an honest and sensible way, without any nonsense about it," replied the captain. "His name is Richard Marlowe, and he is a miller by trade, with a flourishing business."

"And does she care for him?" asked Locksley.

"She would not marry him, unless she did," was the ambiguous reply.

"There, Mr. Locksley, I have told you far more than I intended to—far more than I need have done. Let me grasp your hand and say good-by. Your presence here is a standing menace to the peace of my little home, for I was not so blind a few hours since, that I failed to see the blushes that mantled the cheeks of Dora when you spoke to her in those tones that you men of the world so well how to employ."

Locksley had not heard his last words, but was gazing out of the window, a dazed expression in his eyes.

"It is strange," he said, at length, "that you should imagine that I am a second Lord Morden."

(To be continued.)
Baked tapioca pudding is nice served with a soft custard instead of cream.

Alternating Current Motors

It is a known fact that Westinghouse gave alternating current to the world against the keenest opposition. The pages of history are resplendent with this achievement, which will live as long as the use of electricity.

The "CS" Motor was perfected for utilizing alternating current for constant speed. The great adaptability of this motor built by Westinghouse is just as dependable and practical as the alternating current itself.

WM. HEAR & CO., LTD.,
Board of Trade Building,
Phone 1830 and 1831.

Westinghouse

A few pieces of quince and a bit of lemon rind flavor apple sauce very well with tomato, cheese or Tartar sauce.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

Grid for Cross-Word Puzzle. Suggestions for solving puzzles: Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn will give you others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

- 1-An English county
- 6-Crippled
- 11-Peters
- 13-A competitor
- 14-Native of the West
- 17-A mean
- 19-Insects
- 20-A social class
- 22-To sound with a knif
- 23-To clear
- 24-Compensation
- 25-An ostrich-like bird
- 27-A letter
- 28-To exist
- 29-A cover
- 30-Part of verb "to be"
- 32-A prenum
- 33-To linger
- 38-Odor
- 39-To wipe out
- 37-A right or title
- 38-Walks in shallow water
- 39-An exclamation
- 41-Personal pronoun
- 42-Directly; exactly
- 44-Well known baseball player (nickname)
- 45-An exclamation
- 47-A weapon
- 49-Lasting
- 50-An obstacle
- 53-Territory
- 55-A Christmas green
- 56-Sung by one person
- 57-To place in office
- 58-Exists within
- 61-The whole sum
- 62-Tally
- 63-A tree
- 64-Pays attention
- 2-Employed for wages
- 3-A flower
- 4-A fabulous bird of prey
- 5-To stir up
- 6-Hall
- 7-A planet
- 8-To gladden
- 9-Keen edged weapon
- 10-A slow-creeping creature
- 13-Ranked
- 14-A puzzle
- 16-To make a false movement
- 18-The range
- 21-Holy
- 24-Crowded
- 25-To name terms
- 28-A fish
- 31-Dissipated
- 35-Moved upward
- 36-A sweet potato
- 37-To stir up violently
- 39-A variety of rock
- 40-Ones more
- 42-Laughable
- 43-Mohammedan devil
- 45-Moved upward
- 46-Abode of birds (pl.)
- 50-Prussian light cavalry
- 51-To put to death
- 52-Made weary
- 54-On top of
- 58-Dry
- 58-Consumed

Supply and Demand

London Daily Telegraph: There is no mystery about the soaring wheat prices at Chicago, which the British consumer will regard with increasing anxiety when he reads that the price of the quarter ton is to be advanced immediately from 10d. to 11d. It is all according to plan—the eternal plan of supply and demand. There is a world shortage of wheat and a record world demand; that is the beginning and the end of the trouble. No doubt the frenzied buying in the wheat pits of Chicago and Winnipeg emphasizes and exaggerates the effects of the economic position; but the principal fact to be borne in mind is that this rise in wheat is not due to any ring of speculators creating a certain artificial position and exploiting it for their own ends. The position has been created quite apart from the speculators, and what speculation there is is not that of rings, but of individuals with an excited market before them, in which they take their chance of profit or loss.

Household Notes

- Serve sliced, fried parsnips with roast chicken.
- Very dark-skinned bananas are best for eating.
- Serve sliced sponge cake with thick chocolate sauce.
- A little finely chopped onion improves Tartar sauce.
- With cucumber salad sour cream dressing is transportation.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

CHRYTL	CAILNS	...
REIN	OOBE	...
OF	TEN	NUF
MAV	DOEST	TOO
IRIS	V	SWAN
CONTRADICTORS	...	...
A	T	R
CONTRIBUTORS	...	...
A	O	T
W	T	I
A	S	H
O	T	H
O	T	H
O	T	H
O	T	H
O	T	H

Current Radio

A Home-Made "A" Battery Charger

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

The following is a description of an electrolytic A battery charger which can be constructed for a total cost of around $4.00, and which will deliver 5 amperes to a storage battery.

A piece of board 14 inches long, 2 inches wide and a half inch thick should be procured. To this should be screwed a piece of pure aluminum sheeting 11 inches square, to one side, and to the other a piece of sheet lead 11 inches square. Both metals should be 1-16 inch thick. A 6-gallon crock should be purchased. This crock should be at least 15 inches deep and 15 inches wide, inside measurements. It should be filled with half an inch of its top with 20 Mule Team Borax and water solution. Fill the crock with water and pour in the borax until the water will dissolve no more borax. Then construct a top for the jar having an opening wide enough to admit the board with the two metal sheets. The metal sheets should be placed in the borax solution. A binding post terminal should be screwed to each plate to allow for quick attaching of wires to the plates.

Next the plates must be "formed" that is the rectifier must be connected in series with a 100-watt lamp and connected across the 110-volt alternating current line. This forming process will take several hours. After the plates have been formed the rectifier is ready for use. The rectifier connected in series with the A battery and then both the rectifier and A battery connected across the lighting circuit. This rectifier will safely pass 5 amperes without warming up in the slightest and makes an ideal charger for A batteries.

Copyright, 1925, by The American Radio Relay League, Inc.

Cadbury's Bournville COCOA

The Most economical and best Cocoa on the market.

BAIRD & CO., Ltd.

Agents for
CADBURY BROS., Limited
Bournville, England.

mar.19.25.

COKE

AN EXCELLENT SUBSTITUTE FOR HARD COAL.

Our COKE is much superior to the imported article because it is produced from the highest grade of Pennsylvania Coal, AND DOES NOT CLINKER. Our many customers demonstrate these facts. It is a smokeless fuel, and is admirable for either Domestic or Industrial use.

Our price is $9.00 per half ton delivered at your residence or place of business.

All Orders will receive Prompt Attention.

St. John's Gas Light Co'y.

mar.23.25. PHONE: 81.

In Life or in Death

—A Crown Life Policy is a possession to be thankful for. If you outlive your dependents, its cash value is available at any time. If you die first, it provides for them. Enquire to-day.

CYRIL J. CAHILL
MANAGER FOR NEWFOUNDLAND,
Law Chambers, Duckworth St., St. John's

CROWN LIFE

INSURANCE COMPANY

dec5.ood

COAL!

Now landing ex Julius Holmblad
Best Screened North Sydney Coal.

W. H. HYNES.

Apr.23.25

"Now Feeling Fine and Able to do my own work"

Mrs. Walter Gieves, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "I was in such a weakened, run-down condition that I could not take care of my household duties. I was unable to sleep at night, and the doctor told me I was anemic. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and to-day I am feeling fine and able to do all my own work."

"My little girl had eczema, and different remedies took no effect whatever. We got a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment and that one box relieved her."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

60 cts. a box of 60 pills, Edmansson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto

GERALD S. DOYLE, Distributor.

Chamb On a To I

Australia Naval ceives Land. Violent

BRITAIN HOLDS TO SE

The speech made... berlain, British S... Affairs, in the Ho... night, made a fr... French official cit... assuring feature... ter's speech, it w... the disclosure p... ernment realizes... to the security p...

CHAMBERLAIN'S

Speaking in the... yesterday, Hon. A... Foreign Secretary... placed the black...

Soc

Th... So... be... the... fat...

That... Soap... that... and... else... green

NO... No... no... "sup... blending... And... the... priceles... plexions... Wash... but when... 50 years... Schooling...

MADE IN CANADA

JEFF... OVER... LION... CLUB... SHOOT... POOL...