—The young man Waterman, of this city, who stole a horse and wagon and took it to St. Thomas, is the only prisoner in the Eigin county jail at present.

—The choir of St. Peter's Cathedral has been reorganized under Mrs. Cruickshank and formed into a choir society with the following officers: Honorary president, Father Tiernan; president, F. H. Coles; conductor, Mr. A. E. Miller; secretary, Mr. T. J. Ranahan. Haydn's No. 2 Mass is being rehearsed for Christmas.

—An agitation has been commenced in a bylaw be prepared and sent to the people to be voted on.

—The evangelistic talk by Mr. Leonard Weaver in Victoria Hall last evening was very interesting to those who attended. Appended are some of his texts with the respective lessons he deduced from the same: Job tx, 30—Folly of self-righteousness; Job xxiv, 19—Certainty of God's Yudgments; Job xxxviii., 22—Symbol of God's power; Psalms li., 7—Perfection of his salvation; Psalms xiv., 7-16—Abundance of his mercy; Proverbs xxv., 13—Spiritual refreshment; Isaiah Iv., 10—Abiding fruitfulness of God's word; Job vi., 16-17—Earthly friends come and go. The meetings are very instructive, especially to students of the Bible, and should be well attended afternoon and evening.

—The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Central Circle, C. L. S. C. was held in Wesley Hall Wednesday evening. After routine business expressions of opinion were given, in response to roll call, as to which was the greatest of Tudor monarchs. The majority of the members decided that Elizabeth was the greatest of herr line. An exhaustive address was delivered on the prominent features of Henry VIII.'s reign. A reading from W. W. Story's Current English closed the session. The C. L. S. C. course this year, embracing English history, our English, English literature, studies in astronomy and walks and talks in the geological field, promises to be an intensely interesting one. For those who intend pursuing a systematic course of reading during the winter months, the C. L. S. C. meets every requirement.

Chrysanthemum Wedding.

The nuptials of Dr. Allen A. Jones, of Buffalo, and Miss Mary Hardy, formerly of this city, were celebrated yesterday afternoon at "Fairview," Fort Erie, the residence of Mr. E. Baxter, brother-in-law of the bride. The guests began arriving at 2 o'clock, and by the hour fixed for the ceremony the spacious residence was filled with the relatives and friends of the contracting parties. The bride was led in by her brother, Mr. A. D. Hardy, and wore white mousline de sole over a trained robe of white satin with tulle voil and a pearl star pendant, the gift of the groom. The bridesmalds were little Miss Gladys Hardy, of Brantford, and Albertena and Eleanor Lewis, of Fort Erie, who wore white, earrying large to explain why both furnaces and stoves are used in the costly school buildings, and what is the cost of fuel for such system of what is the cost of fuel for such system of what is the cost of fuel for such system of the period of the corresponding to the properties. The best man was Mr. Sydney Jones, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev Percival Smith, rector

Thoir First Assembly.

The first of a series of assemblies under the auspices of the One O'clock Club was held last night in Jeffries' Hall, London West, and was carried out in a manner creditable to the gentlemen comprising the committee, as well as to the proprietor of the hall. The cold weather prevented too great a crowd, and the knowledge of the light fautastic possessed by the members of the party, together with the efforts of Mr. Jeffries, who kindly furnished lunch and provided ample provision against intruders in the form of two officers who were interested spectators of the dance during the evening, made the time pass very pleasantly. The duty of prompter were filled by Mr. Will E. Sayles, and Chadwick's orchestra supplied the music. Those who contributed to the success of the affair and who will have charge of future assemblies are: B. Sainsbury (chairman), William Packham, Will E. Sayles, F. J. Namztich (sceretary-treasurer), and Mr. Thos. Jeffries.

MIDDLESEX GENERAL SESSIONS.

FOURTH DAY—THURSDAY.

The jury to-day brought in a verdict of guilty against Honow Helow, charged with shooting George Down, of McGillivray township, and doing him bodily harm. They coupled a recommendation to mercy with the verdict. Helow will come before Judge Ellict to-morrow for sentence.

The case of the Queen vs. George Risler, an action for false pretenses, was laid over until next General Sessions. Risler was released on his own recognizance of $100.

The appeal in the case of Isaac Carman vs. Ida Sifton, an action to quash a conviction of Squires Gordon and Noble in a case of cruelty to animals, was granted without costs, no one appearing to uphold the conviction.

The appeal in the case of Robt. Weir vs. B. B. Allen, an action to quash the conviction of Squire Peters for breach of the health bylaw in depositing nightsoil within the township of Westminster, was dismissed. The public health provides that there shall be no appeal to the General Sessions. The question of costs was reserved.

Desperate Remedies

By Thomas Hardy, AUTHOR OF "A PAIR OF BLUE EYES," "THE TRUMPET-MAJOR," ETC.

An agony, which was not the agony of being discovered in a secret, obstructed her utterance for a time. "How can you turn upon me so when I schemed to get you here—schemed that you might win her until I found you were married. Oh, how can you! Oh, Oh!" she wept; and the weeping of such a nature was as harrowing as the weeping of a man.

a nature was as harrowing as the weeping of a man.

"Your getting me here was bad policy as to your secret—the most absurd thing in the world," he said not heeding her distress. "I knew all, except the identity of the individual, long ago. Directly I found that my coming here was a contrived thing, and not a matter of chance, it fixed my attention on you at once. All that was required was a mere spark of life, to make of a bundle of perceptions an organic whole."

"Policy low can you talk of policy? Think, do think. And how can you threaten me when you know—you know—that I would readily befriend you without a threat!"

"Yes, yes, I think you would," he said that I would reastly a threat!"

"Yes, yes, I think you would," he said more kindly; "but your indifference for so many, many years has made me doubt it."

"No, not indifference—"twas enforced silence; my father lived."

He took her hand and held it gently.

"Now listen," he said, more quietly and humanly, when she had become calmer; "Springrove must marry the woman he's engaged to. You may make him, but only in one way."
"Do you know that his father has not been particularly thriving for the last two or three years?"
"I have heard something of it, once or twice, though his rents have been promptly paid, haven't they?"
"Oh, yes; do you know the terms of the leases of the houses which are burnt?" he said, explaining to her that by those terms she might compel him even to rebuild every house. "The case is the clearest case of negligence that I have ever known, in addition to that," he continued.
"I don't want them rebuilt; you know it was intended by my father, directly they fell in to clear the site for a new entrance to the park?"
"Yes, but that doesn't affect the position."

to the park?"
"Yes, but that doesn't affect the position, which is that Farmer Springrove is in your power to an extent which is very serious for him." "I won't do it -it is a conspiracy.

"Won't you for me?" he said, eagerly.
Miss Aldelyffe changed color.
"I don't threaten now. I implore," he raid.

"Because you might threaten if you chose." she mournfully answered. "But why be so—when your marriage with her was my pet idea long before it was yours? What must I do?"

"Secretly anything simply this. When

What must I do?"
"Searcely anything; simply this. When I have seen old Mr. Springrove, which I shall do in a day or two, and told him that he will be expected to rebuild the houses. See him yourself, in order that the proposal made may not appear to be anything more than an impulse of your own. You or he will bring up the subject of the houses. To rebuild them would be a matter of at least 6500 and he will almost surely say that we will bring up the subject of the houses. To rebuild them would be a matter of at least £600, and he will almost surely say that we are hard in insisting upon the extreme letter of the leases. Then tell him that scarcely can you yourself think of compelling an old tenant like his father to any such painful extreme—there shall be no compulsion to build, simply a surrender of the leases. Then speak feelingly of his cousin, as a woman whom you respect and love, and whose secret you have learnt that she is heart-sick with hope deferred. Beg him to marry her, his betrothed and your friend, as some return for the consideration toward his father. Don't suggest too early a day for the marriage, or he will suspect you of some motive beyond womanly sympathy. Coax him to make a promise to her that she shall be his wife at the end of a twelvemonth, and get him, on assenting to this,
