SERIOUS LOSS.

Large Mines Abandoned and Filling With Water-Results of a Strike.

Leadville, Col., Aug. 31.-The pumps in the Bon Air and Penrose mines, two of the largest properties in this district, have been stopped, and the mines are rapidly filling with water. Moffatt & Smith, owners of these and several deep mines here, announce that they shall stop the pumps in all of them. This will cause the flooding of nearly every mine in the richest part of the district, entailing a loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars in damage to the workings. Some of the mines will be abandoned permanently. This action is the result of the strike which was inaugurated five weeks ago, and seems no nearer a settlement than when it began.

Bishop Potter Prescribes a Prayer Applicable to Present Conditions. New York, Aug. 31.-Bishop Potter has sent to the clergy of the diocese, to be used in the Episcopal churches, a prayer which is specially appropriate to the conditions existing in this country at the present time. It is as follows:

"O Almighty Lord, who fashionest the hearts of all men and considerest all their works, grant, we beseech Thee, to us and to all the people of this land, the spirit of obedience to Thy commandments: that, walking only in Thy fear, we may, under Thy mighty protection, continue to dwell in righteousness and peace. Defend our liberties, preserve our unity, save us from dishonesty, lawlessness, and violence, from discord and confusion, from pride and arrogancy, and from every evil way. Continue Thy goodness to us, that the heritage received from our fathers may be preserved in our time and transmitted unimpaired to the generations to come: that all the nations of the earth may know that Thou, O Lord, art our Saviour and mighty Deliverer and our King Grant this, we beseech Thee, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.'

Their Descendants-Not a Broken Tie in the Family.

Mr. D. D. Campbell made the presentation address, and said in part that it was a very unusual thing for so large a family to be settled comfortably in life without an unbroken tie; that the children had not only been well provided for, but were reared in the fear of the Lord, and now, in their older years, were all professors of reolder years, were all professors of reolder years, were all professors of religion, showing spiritual as well as temporal interest that was taken in bringing up their children.

After Mr. Campbell had concluded he called upon their son James to present the gifts, which were, appropriately of gold. Mrs. Gray replied that Afterward Mr. Malcolm Gray entertained the assemblage with reminiscences of earlier years. They first settled in Aldboro, where he was born. Mr. Gray is now 76 years of age, and has lived on the farm where he now resides for 70 years. The farm was purchased for $150, part of which was paid in cattle. In these early days neighbors were few and far between: the nearest was two miles away. On one occasion Mr. Gray was accompanying his mother on a visit to one of their neighbors when they heard a pig squealing. On going to ascertain the cause they found him in the clutches of an enormous black bear. The bear had dragged the pig, weighing over 200 pounds, across a large log. On another occasion his father was prevented from making a call on a neighbor by the wolves. It was no uncommon thing to see the ings were being made. A snap-shot was taken by Mrs. J. E. Gray, who has become quite an expert amateur artist, of the whole company.

Emile Ollivier Rehearses a Long List of Fatel Blunders.

Paris Dispatch to the London Times M. Emile Ollivier has been interviewed in behalf of a morning paper on the occasion of the 26th anniversay of his fall. He refuses to admit that his Ministry committed any blunders, and declares that it was simply very unfortunate.

"France," he says, "was assured of the alliance of Austria and Italy, and this alliance we should have had except for the disaster and the unpardonable mistake of Sedan. Yes; we had their support even after Reichshofen.
"So certain were these alliances that the plan of campaign for which the Emperor had been so much blamed the parceling out, that is, of the army corps along the frontier—was imposed upon us by the Austrian military staff. Our troops were even disposed according to the plans of the Archduke Albert, that we might the more easily support him when he should ar-rive at the head of the army.

"But there was something better than this, for, even if the alliance failed us, even if we were abandoned by first victory would have sufficed to decide the final hesitation of Austria and Italy, then intimidated by the support that Russia gave to Ger-

"We had every chance of beating Prussia. The German mobilization could not be completed until Aug. 9. But we were ready on June 30. We had 280,000 soldiers at Metz ready to march. The first mistake was not march. The first mistake was not marching, and this was the Emperor's fault. Lebouef desired it—he whas been calumniated. Our infantry was superior to that of Germany at this moment; we had only to crost the Sarre, and we should have found opposing us only the Eighth corps, still in formation.

"We might have come down upon it like a torrent and crushed the first Prussian corps issuing from the defiles of Kaiserstein. The Emperor did not wish it. At Saarbrucken he had not been able to stay on his horse, and had fallen fainting into the arms of his aide de camp. He suffered from an internal disease. He was unable to command, and would not allow an-According to M. Ollivier, the second blunder, an heroic one, was committed by MacMahon on Aug. 6, on accepting battle at Worth without assuring himself of the movements of Failly and Douay. Although Mac-Mahon killed or wounded as many Germans as composed his own army corps, France began the campaign by a defeat. Still, it was not too late to repair the evil.

But a third blunder was committed, and the person guilty of this, according to M. Ollivier, was Froissard, who became frightened at Forbach and retired, while Bazaine said to himself as he hesitated whether to go to his rescue: "The maitre d'ecole is in the thick of it; leave him to ex-tricate himself alone." The fourth blunder, which M. Ollivier describes as a crime, was the action of Bazaine at Metz on the 14th, 16th and 18th, at Borny, Gravelotte and Saint Privat. Finally, the fifth blunder was the Cabinet council presided over by the Empress, and the responsibility for this M. Ollivier ascribes to the Comte de Palikao and his colleagues. accuses the Empress of having inflexibly refused, even against the wish of the Emperor, MacMahon and the young prince, to give her consent to an act which was the most oblivious of all duties at the moment-namely, to recall the army of Chalons to Paris and to organize under its protection the arming of the nation. By this mistaken action of dynastic interest the debacle of Sedan became possible. and M. Ollivier quotes the Emperor as saying to MacMahon: "Puis qu'il en est ainsi, allons nous faire casser la
