Considering that the shipments of cheese at Montreal from the opening of the season to the close of last week were about 120,000 boxes in excess of those for the corresponding period last year, and the exports from New York about 50,000 boxes, the export demand has demonstrated a remarkable vitality which has sustained prices very high and has exceeded the expectations of the majority of shippers and dealers. This shows very clearly, says the Trade Bulletin, that the recent strong position of the market has been due mainly to the unprecedented consumptive demand of Great Britain, and probably to a curbing of home production, for if as English buyers admitted by last mail that their home make of butter had been reduced by dry weather, as it has been, not the same meteorological influences equally affect the make of cheese. It is quite evident that the extraordinary export demand that has characterized our cheese market this season has been due to an unusually vigorous consumptive demand in Great Britain, for it must be remembered that from the commencement of the season to the close of last week the combined exports from Montreal and New York were 1,093,600 boxes, against 885,000 boxes for the corresponding period last year, showing the large increase of over 200,000 boxes. The cheese going out by this week's steamer has cost 80c for the finest white and colored, and a considerable trading has taken place at 80c for the under-priced goods. The Liverpool public cake has advanced 1/2c, and the large shipments from this side, and the large situation is the fact that the factory on this side, having sold their make so close up to the hoops, are not in a position to supply the higher prices would not be at all surprising, but it can hardly be expected that the demand from England will be as large as it has been, unless the English make is shorter than buyers on the other side care to admit.
