TANGLED <--

Deep in reflection, the doctor strode on: when, in passing Mrs. Gass's house, a sharp tapping at the window saluted his ear. It came from that lady herself, and she threw up the sash.

'Just come in, will you, Dr. Rane? I want you for something very particular."
He felt sure she only wanted to question him about the death, and would a great deal rather have gone on; but with her red and smiling face inviting him in peremptorily, he did not see his way to refusing her. "And so he is gone—that poor young man!" she began, meeting him in her smart dress and pink cap. "When I heard the death bell ring out this morning, it sounded to me a'most like my own knell. "Yes, he is gone—unhappily," murmured

"Well, now, doctor, the next thing iswhat became of you yesterday?" The change of subject appeared peculiar.

"Became of me?" repeated Dr. Rane. "How do you mean?" 'All the mortal day I was stuck at this parlor window, waiting to see you go by," repeated Mrs. Gass. "You never passed

"Yes, I did. I passed in the morning." "My eyes must have gone a maying then, for they never saw you," was Mrs. Gass's answer.

"It was before my usual hour. I was called out early to a sick man in Dallory, and I took the opportunity to see Ketler at the same time.' "Then that accounts for the milk in the cocoa nuts; and I wasted my time for noththing," was the good tempered rejoinder. Why did you want to see me pass?" Mrs. Gass paused for a moment before replying. She glanced round to see that the door was closed, and dropped her voice almost to a whisper. "Dr. Rane, who wrote that fatal letter?

Oliver Rane stared at her, a sudden flush of anger dyeing his brow. No wonder; the question, put with emphatic earnestness, seemed an assertion, almost like that startling repreach of Nathan to David.

"Mrs. Gass, I do not know what you "I see you don't relish it, doctor. But I am a plain body, as you know; and when in doubt about a thing, pleasant or unpleasant, I like to ask an explanation right out.'

"But why should you be in doubt about this?" he inquired wonderingly. What can induce you to connect me with the letter?" Mrs. Gass took her portly person across the room to a desk; unlocked it, and brought stops the itching and bleeding, heals forth a folded piece of paper. She handed it to Dr. Rane.

It was not a letter; it could not be the copy of one; but it did appear to be the rough sketch of the anonymous missive that had reached Mr. North. Some of the sentences were written two or three times over; in a close hand, in a scrawling hand, in a reversed hand, as if the writer were practising different styles; in others the construction was altered, words were erased, others substituted. Oliver Rane gazed upon it as one in complete bewilderment. "What is this, Mrs. Gass?"

"Is it not the skeleton of the letter?" "No, certainly not. And yet-" Dr. Rane broke off and ran his eye over the lines again and again. "There is a similarity in some of the phrases," he suddenly said. Some of the phrases is identical," returned Mrs. Gass. "When Richard North was here yesterday, I got him to repeat over to me the words of the letter; word for word, so far as he remembered em, and know em for these words. Whoever writ that letter to Mr. North, doctor, first of all tried his sentences and his hand on this paper, practicing how he could best do it."

"How did you come by this?"
"You left it here the night defore last." "I left it here!" repeated Dr. Rane, looking as if he mentally questioned whether Mrs. Gass was in her right senses. Yes. You."

"But you must be dreaming, Mrs. Gass." "I never do dream—that sort of dreaming," replied Mrs. Gass. "Look here" putting her stout hand, covered with costly rings, on his coat sleeve—"didn't you upset your pocketbook here that night? Well, this piece of paper fell out of it." "It could not have done anything of the,"

he repeated, getting flushed and angry again. All the papers that fell out of my pocketbook I picked up and returned to it."
"You didn't pick this up; it must have fluttered away unseen. Just after you were gone I dropped my spectacle case, and in stooping for it, I saw this piece of paper lying under the claw of the table."

"But it could not have come out of my pocket book. Just tell me, if you please, Mrs. Gass, what should bring such a document in my possession?" "That's just what I can't tell. The paper was not there before candle light; I'll answer for that much; so where else could it have come from?" The last words were not spoken as an assertion of her view, but as a question. Dr.

Rane looked at her, she at him; both seeming equally puzzled. "Had you any visitors last evening besides myself?" he asked. Not a soul. The only person that came into the parlor, barring my own servants, was Molly Green, under housemaid at the Hall. She lived with me once, and calls in sometimes in passing to ask how I am. They sent her into Dallory for something wanted at the chemist's, and shellooked in to tell me. The thing had just happened."

Dr. Rane's brow lost its perplexity; an easy smile, as if the mystery were solved, crossed his face. The hint recently given him by Mr. A x nder was in his mind. I'm glad you've told me this, Mrs. Gass. The papyr was more likely to have been left by Molly green than by me. It may have lropped from her petticoats."

"Goodness bless the man! From her petticoats! Why, she had run all the way from the Hall. And how was she likely to pick it up in that house—even though her gown had been finished off with fish hooks?" "What cause have I given you to suspect tones. "Only this-that I don't see where the Only this—that I don't see where the paper could have come from but out of your own pocketbook," replied Mrs. Gass frenkly. 'I have no other reason to suspect to you: I'd as soon suspect myself. It is just a you; I'd as soon suspect myself. It is just a mystery, and nothing else.' "Whatever the mystery may be, it is not connected with my pocketbook, Mrs. Gass," this to Richard North?"

"No. Nor to anybody else. It was not a pleasant thing to speak of, you see.' "Not a pleasant thing for me, certainly, to be suspected of having dropped that paper. The culprit, an innocent one, no doubt, must have been Molly Green." "I never was so brought up in all my life," cried the puzz ed woman. "As to Molly Green-it must be just a fancy of yours, doctor, for it never can be fact.'

Oliver Rane drew his chair a little nearer to Mrs. Gass, and whispered a word of the doubt touching Mrs. North. He only spoke of it as a doubt; a hint at most; but Mrs. Gass was not slow to take it. "Heaven help the woman!-if it's her

"But this must not be breathed aloud." he said, taking alarm. It may be a false

"Don't fear me; it's a thing too grave for me to mix myself up in," was the reply; and to give Mrs. Gass her due, she did look scared in no slight degree. "Dr. Rane, I am sorry for saying what I did to you. It was the impossibility, as I took it, of anything's having left it here but that flutter of papers from your pocketbook. Whoever would have given a thought to Molly

Dr. Rane made no answer.
"She puther basket down by the door there, and came up the room to look at my geraniums; I held the candle for her. I remember she caught her crinoline on the corner of the iron fender, and it gave her a twist round. The idiots that girls make of themselves with them big crinolines! Perhaps it dropped from her then.' "Well, let us bury it in silence, Mrs. Gass; it is only a doubt at best," said the prudent but less eloquent physician. "You will allow me to take this," he added alluding to the paper. "I should like to examine it at leisure. "Take it, and welcome," she answered; 'I'm glad to be rid of it. As to burying it in silence, we had better, I expect, both do

"Remarkable Cure of Dropsy and Dyspepsia."-Mr. Samuel T. Casey, Belleville, writes: "In the spring of 1884 I began to be troubled with dyspensia, which gradually became more and more distressing. I used various domestic remedies and applied to my family physician, but received no benefit. By this time my trouble assumed the form of dropsy. I was unable to use any food whatever except boiled milk and bread; my limbs were swollen to twice their natural size; all hopes of my recovery were given up, and I quite expected death within a few weeks. Northrop & Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY having been recommended to me, I tried a bottle with but little hope of relief; and now, after using eight bottles, my Dyspepsia and Dropsy are cured. Although now 79 years of age I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and my general health is good. CHASE'S CHAPTER

1. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are combination of valuable medicines in concen trated form as prepared by the eminent Phy sician and Author, Dr. A. W. Chase, with a view to not only be an unfailing remedy for Kidney and Liver troubles, but also tone the Stomach and purify the Blood, at a cost that is within the reach of all. The superior merit of these pills is established beyond question by the praise of thousands who use them-one Pill a dose, one box 25 cents.

2. When there is a Pain or Ache in the Back the Kidneys are speaking of trouble that will ever increase unless relieved. We have the reliable statement of L. B. Johnson, Holland Landing, who says: I had a con-Johnson, Holland Landing, stant Back-Ache, my back felt cold all the time, appetite poor, stomach sour and belching, urine scalding, had to get up 3 or 4 times during night to urinate, com-menced taking one Kidney-Liver Pill a day; Back-Ache stopped in 48 hours, appetite returned, and able to enjoy a good meal and a good nights sleep; they cured me.

3. Constipation often exists with Kidney Trouble, in such a case there is no medicine that will effect a permanent cure except Chase's combined Kidney-Liver Pill, one 25 cent box will do more good than dollars and dollars worth of any other preparation, this is endors ed by D. WOMAN'S NEED Women suffer unspeakable tortures from nuscular weakness, caused by impaired nerves and poor blood. Uric Kidney acid poison, unsuspected, weakens the nerves and poisons the blood. By and by, if the Kidneys do not properly purify the blood, then comes prolapsus, retroversion, etc. Blood 75 per cent. pure is not a nourisher—it is a death breeder. Delicate women need not be told how much they would give to get and STAY well. If their blood is free from the poisonous ferments of the Kidneys and Liver, they will never know what "weakness" is. The blood is the source and sustainer of health it cannot be kept pure except the Kidneys and Liver do their work naturally. Something is needed to insure free and natural action of these organs, one 25 cent box of Kidney-Liver Pills will prove to any sufferer they are a boon to women, can be used with perfect confidence by those of delicate constitution. One Kidney-Liver Pill taken weekly will effectually neutralize the formation of Uric Acid in the blood and prevent any tendency to Bright's Disease or Diabetes.

For purifying the Blood and renevating the system, especially in the Spring, one 25 cent box is equal to $10 worth of any Sarsaparilla or Bitters known. Sold by all dealers, or by mail on receipt of price, EDMANSON, BATES & CO., 45 Lombard Street, Toronto.
