BISHOP ATTACKS KIPLING. London, Oct. 6.-The church congress at Brighton has suffered from the preoccupation of the public with the yacht races and the battles with the Boers, but it has been a most interesting session. The factions have stood by their guns, but the warfare has been less fierce than usual. The Bishop of Chichester called for a truce when he drew the line between Christian unity and Christian uniformity, and advocated painstaking study of the real Roman controversy. The most unexpected incident was the attack upon Mr. Kipling by the Bishop of Calcutta for creating erroneous im pressions of the conduct of Europeans in India. The Bishop of London sprang promptly to Mr. Kipling's defense, and thereby earned the gratitude of the literary class here, with whom his predecessor was deservedly popular. SEEING THINGS. Previous to the departure for Laggan, the duchess visited more of the show places of the park, including the sulphur pool and cave, where she signed her name, "Victoria May," in the registers with a gold pen, which Mr. Galletty, the caretaker, had had presented to him in Peterboro some years ago, but which had never been dipped in ink. Mr. Galletty, at the request of the princess, broke off a beautiful piece of the frost-like stalactites which are again forming. The original ones, which took centuries to form, were removed by vandal hands before the place was taken over for park purposes. The duchess inspected seme of the sketches of Mr. F. M. One of the journalists in stepping from the car in the dark severely sprained his ankle, and Dr. Manby had to be called to examine it. The victim was as much astonished as gratified to be told this evening that the duchess had sent a message from the hotel to inquire for him.

The duchess attended St. George's Church this evening. Rev. Canon Dalton preached the sermon. In the afternoon she drove to Devil's Lake and other points of interest.

The shooting party consists of his royal highness the duke, Prince Alexander of Teck, Lord Crichton, Commander Godfrey Faussett, Sir Charles Cust and Major Maude. After luncheon on the train, Senator Kirchhoffer and his guests drove out to the lake, a distance of about twelve miles. On arriving at the landing a fleet of canoes were ready to convey the guests to the shooting lodge, which is a fivemile paddle. The canoe conveying the Duke of York was guided by John Atkinsen, premier guide of Lake Manitoba shooting grounds, with Lord Minto in the bow, the other boats forming a flee of honor. The party reached the shooting lodge about o'clock.

NOTICE FROM FRATERNITY.

Greek Letter Society Missive Found in Alan Gibbons' Room.

He Had Been Warned To Be at a Certain Street Corner on the Night of His Death.

A late account of the tragic death of Alan Gibbons at Toronto Saturday night, says:

Just before the dying lad was removed from the house, Allan Magee, of London, one of the young fellows who found deceased, noticed in crossing the room that on a small side table lay a letter torn into a number of pieces. These were handed over to the police to be put together, and when they did so, this is the way the letter read:

NEOPHYTE,-Be at the corner of St. George street and Dupont street on the evening of Saturday, October the 6th, at half-past seven o'clock, and there await a summons. Fail not in this, and mention not this notice.

The note was written on a double sheet of heavy vellum notepaper, with the Greek characters for Alpha, Delta, Phi," a Greek letter society formed of Toronto University students, at the top. It was neither dated nor signed, and was written in bright green ink. The envelope which contained the missive was also addressed in green ink to "A. Gibbons," but was not stamped, and must have been delivered instead of posted. Nobody at the Glass residence had seem the letter, and either Gibbons took it from the letter box himself, if it was delivered at the house, or it was given o him outside.

Whether the death of the young man was in any way connected with the torn-up letter is the question which is agitating university circles, and which some people think should be investigated by the coroner, not only in justice to the "Alpha, Delta, Phi" fraternity, but also in the interests of the public.

Deceased had applied for admission to the society, and his friend Magee was introducing him. He had called at the fraternity house, the headquarters of the society, on Friday evening

Could the fear of initiation into a secret society have so worked upon the mind of the 17-year-old lad as to have caused him, when he received a letter containing a veiled threat, to take his own life? According to the members of the fraternity, it could not. They all deny that there was any initiation or procedure whatever on Friday night, but say that Gibbons and Magee left the fraternity house at 45 Murray street together, and went to a reception given by the second-year men to the freshmen at the Students' Union. When the end had come, Coroner Powell states that he notified Crown Attorney Dewart of the affair, and asked his advice in regard to holding an inquest. Thinking that nothing could be gained by the inquiry, they agreed that it should not be held, so the body was taken back to London on the 7:40 a.m. train by the griefstricken father and Mr. Charles Hyman, who had accompanied him from

Woman, "the Sinse iv Her Physical Interpority Makes Her Weep"-Mr. Doolev's Wife vs. Housework.

[From the New York Journal.] We're gettin' to be th' gr-reatest spoortin' nation in th' wurruld," said Mr. Hennessy, who had been laboring through pages of athletic intelligence which he could not understand.
"Oh, so we ar-re," said Mr. Dooley.

"An' I wondher does it do us anny good. 'Tis impoorted fr'm th' English. They have a sayin' over there that the Jook iv Wellin'ton said first or somebody said f'r him, an' that's been said a number iv times since, that th' bat-tle iv Watherloo was won on th' playin' fields iv Eton, that bein' a school where th' youth iv England an' Pitts-

COOL SILOAM'S SHADY RILL RE-

For over ten years the Pool of Siloam has been only a name. Visitors to Palestine who have visited this famous spot of late years have found that its healing waters have vanished. This was a great blow to the inhabitants, but just recently the waters of Siloam have been made to flow once again, and there has been great rejoicing in the Holy Land. It appears that Jerusalem has been especially short water of late, and it occurred to some of the inhabitants of Siloam to try and find out whether the spring which used to supply the pool was really dry. Tons of accumulated rubbish cleared away, and after about month's work the spring was found, The excavators discovered behind some fallen rocks an old aqueduct running away into the valley of the Ked-ron, and into this aqueduct the beau-tiful, cool, clear water had run and been wasting for years.-Sunday Com-
