

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION REVEALS GREAT SKIN CURE

THE EXPLOSION.

INJURED MAN'S STORY.

MR. WM. BALL, of London.

heard of Zam-Buk, and commenced to use it, that I got any evidence of the skin growing again. Since then new healthy skin has grown on the parts severely burned. I feel very grateful that I ever heard of Zam-Buk, because it has done for me what medical skill in the hospital failed to do. I feel that Zam-Buk is a wonderful skin cure, and have no hesitation in recommending it to everyone."

SKIN GRAFTING AT THE HOSPITAL.

Sacrificed His Skin

THAT THE DAYS OF SACRIFICE ARE NOT PAST IS PROVED BY THE REMARKABLE STORY OF MR. JAMES SCHOFIELD, OF LONDON. HE SAYS:—

MR. JAMES SCHOFIELD.

"I am pleased to give my testimony to the healing power of Zam-Buk. A friend of mine was severely burned through an explosion of kerosene oil. So much so that it was felt that someone should sacrifice their skin, so that it might be transplanted to the body of the unfortunate fellow. I agreed to have this taken from my leg. This was done on two or three occasions, but apparently without any result, until he heard of Zam-Buk. Since Zam-Buk was applied the good work commenced."

"I also used Zam-Buk for the place on my leg from which the skin was removed, and I am glad to report without any bad results, the new skin has grown, and I consider Zam-Buk the best skin food I have known. I am perfectly willing that this testimonial should be used for the benefit of others."

One of the greatest triumphs in this new century is the discovery of a unique preparation for growing new healthy skin on the human body. The earliest attempts in this branch of investigation are found in the times of ancient Greece and Rome, when the bold warriors and gladiators of the day used a secret balm upon injuries received in battle or in arena. The charioteers did not emerge from their mad races without some severe bruise or gaping wound, and to anoint each injury carefully with their favorite balm was an indispensable part of the day's programme. This custom of applying externally some kind of ointment has prevailed right from the earliest times, and the only explanation of its survival, amidst so many changes in science, seems to lie in the fact that the external use of salves and balms is dictated to us by nature itself. Our own instinct tells us to rub a part that hurts, and in Zam-Buk the ideal substance to apply to an injured or diseased surface is universally believed to have been found at last. It is a well-known fact that modern preparations such as ointments, creams, salves, liniments and embrocations are not only imperfect in their action but they frequently contain quantities of rancid animal fat and mineral products of a harmful nature. Nature having given to man the instinct to rub, might well be supposed to have secreted somewhere the proper substances to rub with. A search amongst certain rare medicinal herbs showed how much of them could be made to yield gums and juices possessing healing, soothing and antiseptic properties of a wonderful order. Many experiments were made with mixtures or blendings of these juices, and eventually Zam-Buk, a combination with astonishing powers as a soothing and antiseptic balm, really capable of overcoming disease (even in the inner tissues), and growing new, healthy skin, was secured. Zam-Buk is today generally regarded as a household necessity. For skin-sickness and injuries in home, factory, field or workshop, Zam-Buk is unequalled.

HANDS MOROCCO TO THE FRENCH

Sultan Asks That All The Ports Be Occupied By Troops.

Tangier, Oct. 15.—Judging from the latest semi-official declarations here, Sultan Abd-el-Aziz, during the conference with the French minister, invited France to consider the question of establishing a protectorate over Morocco, including the immediate occupation of the entire coast.

The most disgusting feature of the situation, with the exception of the reported request of the Sultan that the Porte be occupied by France's troops, is the practical certainty that an attempt is now imminent to police foreign military police upon the various seaboard of Morocco, which is believed will meet with fierce resistance on the part of the natives.

The Franco-Spanish authorities have announced their intention of beginning the new international police service at an early date, and with the chief of police, Col. Muller, the ex-officer in the Swiss army, they are now organizing the force, and planning its installation.

While professing warm devotion to France Abd-el-Aziz informed the French minister, now at Rabat, that though he gratefully accepted the service of the foreign officers, the actual police force must be composed of Moorish subjects, and he would continue to regard the Algeiras convention as being binding. France, however, desires to utilize large numbers of the soldiers of the foreign legion, Spahis and other Algerian troops, known as "The Butchers of Casablanca," which naturally is likely to excite the animosity of the natives.

The importance of the attitude of the Sultan toward the proposed French protectorate over Morocco and occupation of the ports cannot be overestimated. According to the view taken in diplomatic circles here, it means not only European intervention, probably with a reconversion of the terms of the Algeiras convention, but the immediate and thorough resistance of the natives, who are now wrought to the highest pitch of excitement by the report that Abd-el-Aziz is delivering himself completely into the hands of the French.

The resumption of business and restoration of normal conditions at Casablanca, as reported by the pro-French press of Morocco, are disproved by reliable information received here from Mazagan, which says: "Moors returning here from Casablanca, it caught

CHAMBERLAIN BETTER

Is Making a Slow Recovery From the Ravages of Gout.

London, Oct. 14.—Mr. Chamberlain is steadily recovering his strength, as the result of the careful treatment he has been undergoing.

He still suffers severely from the gout in one leg and slightly in the other, and in one arm, but his eyes are now quite free from this insidious complaint. His brain is quite clear, and every morning he devotes two hours to reading newspapers and keeping in touch with public affairs.

During his seclusion at Highbury the only persons Mr. Chamberlain has received beyond the members of his family, and his private secretary, Mr. Wilson, have been four friends who live in the neighborhood.

He walks daily for a considerable time in his grounds, taking great interest in the gardening operations. Dressed usually in a gray suit and a soft gray felt hat, he walks at a brisk pace, requiring no assistance, though he leans somewhat heavily on a thick stick. His monocle has been replaced by spectacles.

Mr. Chamberlain rarely breakfasts before ten, while by the same hour in the evening he is usually in bed. His diet is carefully regulated, being sparing in quantity, while meat is reduced to a minimum. His allowance of the strong green cigars, of which he used to consume so large a number, has been cut down to two or three a day, and he seldom smokes a pipe.

In the afternoon he usually rests for several hours. His constant attendants are Mrs. Chamberlain, to whose tender and unrelenting care so much of his recovery is due, and Mr. Wilson, who for so many years has been his private secretary.

NO DIVIDENDS FOR THE D.U.R.

Surplus Earnings Will Go For the Development of the System

New York, Oct. 15.—The Detroit United Railway Company issued the following statement today: "To the stockholders: As you know, the territory which the Detroit United Railway serves has been developing at a very rapid rate, necessitating large expenditures for equipment, improvements and additional property. It has always been the policy of the company to provide the public with the best possible service, the result of which is large sums of money, have been constantly expended to accomplish this end. The present condition of the money market is such that the company is unable to reimburse itself through the sale of its bonds at what it deems a reasonable price for sums properly chargeable to capital account. Notwithstanding the fact that the surplus earnings of the company are approximately equal to those of the previous fiscal year, it is deemed by the board of directors to be for the best interest of the stockholders to use such present surplus earnings in providing for the improvements to which reference has been made above. Your directors have, therefore, decided to omit payment of the regularly quarterly dividend at this time."

J. C. HUTCHINS, President.

Big Slump at Montreal. Montreal, Que., Oct. 15.—Mr. H. S. Holt, the only Montreal director of the Detroit United Railway, denies having any intention of resigning as the result of the directors' passing the quarterly dividend. Mr. Holt was not present at the meeting at which this action was taken. There is intense indignation among the shareholders over the action of the directors, a considerable number of the shareholders living here. The stock dropped to 28½ shortly after the opening of the exchange today, after closing at 50 yesterday. The first price yesterday was 61. Toledo dropped to 10, and the rest of the market was seriously depressed.

HONEYMOON TRIP TO AFRICAN WILDS

Miss Amy McMillan to Wed British Agent to Abyssinia.

Manchester by the Sea, Mass., Oct. 15.—Of all American girls who have married well-known foreigners few have had such interesting journeys as that planned for Miss Amy McMillan, of Detroit, who will tomorrow become the bride of Sir John Lane Harrington.

Miss McMillan is the daughter of the late United States Senator James McMillan, of Michigan, and for several seasons has spent her summers at Eagle Head, her mother's summer home here.

Sir John will take his bride from the conventional life of the north shore to the wildest country laying claim to a place in the family of Christian nations—Abyssinia—and to the court of King Menelik, to which he is accredited as Great Britain's Minister Plenipotentiary.

From a home of wealth and the most exclusive of society of Washington and Manchester to this distant country is a far cry, but Miss McMillan is said by her friends to be very happy at the prospect of a honeymoon jaunt of more than seven thousand miles to the wild interior of Africa.

This journey will take the bridal couple more than seven thousand miles by sea and then about six hundred miles from the coast to the city of Addis Ababa, on the wild uplands of Ethiopia, a vast, almost undeveloped land lying south of the Sudan, to the east of the upper waters of the Nile.

There are no railroads to King Menelik's capital as yet, although one has been started by the French from the Gulf of Arabia and is now completed about 185 miles inland.

Beyond that point the American bride of Sir John must ride on a horse, mule or camel.

An expedition sent into the country by the United States in 1902 to negotiate a commercial treaty with King Menelik was twenty days on the march after leaving the railroad.

Miss McMillan is a daughter of the late Senator James McMillan, of Detroit, who was a native of Amilton, and moved to Detroit while a young man. He also resided in London for some years.

COOK'S DASH FOR THE POLE

Using Sleighs for Pack and Boats for the Open Spaces.

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 15.—The former fishing schooner John R. Bradley, which took Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Brooklyn explorer, to Etah, from whence he is to make a dash for the pole, is at anchor in the harbor here. Capt. Moses Bartlett, her commander, who was with Perry in the Roosevelt's expedition, when he accompanied Bradley, the owner of the schooner, says that when at Etah, he had not announced his intention of trying for the pole. His plan is to stay at Etah until December, or till the ice-pack becomes well hardened, then dash along the pack. When open water is met he will cross it in two canvas boats. Captain Bartlett says that had Perry these boats he would have succeeded in his attempt.

Dr. Cook will take but a few Esquimaux and dogs and will detail them in stations along the way. The captain left Dr. Cook a supply of food.

The attempt will not be a costly one. Dr. Cook was a guest of Mr. Bradley's trip, and the expense of the Esquimaux and the dogs will not be excessive.

JUST LIKE "MOONSTONE"

Experience in Real Life That Reads Like a Wilkie Collins Novel.

London, Oct. 15.—A romantic story strongly reminiscent in its main outlines of Wilkie Collins' famous novel, "The Moonstone," has been told of Bombardier Warren of the Royal Garrison Artillery, who was reported to have disappeared from Gosport.

Warren, according to the information which he is alleged to have given to his fiancée, was cycling on the road to Gosport by night on Sept. 7, when he was overtaken by a motor car in which traveled two Hindus and an Englishman. He was knocked senseless as he was telling them their way to Portsmouth.

He next found himself a prisoner on a yacht anchored off Bristol. With him was another Englishman, who, strange to say, had been his companion many years before. Together they had stolen a sacred stone from a Hindu temple and had sold it and shared the proceeds. Now a Hindu in the yacht demanded that the stone should be restored, and threatened to keep them both as prisoners until they complied. This they could not do, and after some days they escaped through a porthole and swam about until picked up by a patrol boat and brought to Bristol.

Meantime a paragraph had appeared in an Aldershot paper announcing that the bombardier had been knocked down and killed by a motor car and had been buried. His sweetheart, who saw this statement, learned on inquiry that Warren was alive and well.

Mr. Johnson, of South Farnborough, the girl's father, said that Warren in proof of the kidnapping story showed him the bruises on his shoulder sustained in squeezing through the porthole.

Interviewed at Fort Rowner, Gosport, Warren said the whole story was a fabrication, and he did not know how it got about. On Sept. 7 he returned on his bicycle from Aldershot and arrived safely at Gosport. He intended to let the matter drop.

Dorothy, Lady Stanley, the widow of the famous African explorer, was married a short time ago to Henry Curtis, of whom the world knows little save that he is a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons. Since Sir Henry M. Stanley's death, three years ago, she has lived the life of a recluse at Furze Hill, the country place in Surrey that Stanley bought, and where he is buried.
