The Morbid Phase.

Truly may it be said that Fenianism in Ireland has received the most fatal wound in the house of its friends. When Royal clemency was asked, even their brethren in British bastile confined, nobody was surprised. The act was in perfect harmony with their patriotic professions. But they have gone too far, committed a fatal error in an eited certain happy effects of contrast, a fresh vent tenant farmers and ethers directly grand finale excellently instrumental. interested in agrarian reform holding any more meetings on the subject un it the Fenian prisocers are released. In this they virtually assume the government of the country, dictate to the farmers and others what they may and may not do, repress freedom of speech and the liberty of public meetings and discussions, thus seeking to interdict that freedom which they profess to pro-mote. Nor would this declaration of intention appear to be a mere ille threat; as one most diabolical attempt to carry it into effect has been recorded. According to a Dublin telegram, an attempt was made to remove a rail, to throw a train off the line to Havan, which was conveying about seven hundred farmers and five priests to the tenant-rights meeting in that town. This fiendish act was fortunately discovered in time to avert consequences fearful to contemplate. Several other minor acts of terrorism, such as assaulting priests and the like, have also been recorded; and the att. mpt was made to faster these cowardly outrages upon the Or-angemen; but the trick has utterly failed. It would appear that the Fenians fear that the elergy, who have the good of Ireland at heart, may be content to accept constitutional reforms from the hands of the British Government, and that the disestablishment of a hated alien Church and the pending agrarian reforms may render further riotous proceedings altogether unwarranted, and that thus the occupation of these unprincipled agita.ors will be gone. It will be strange, indeed, it the new attitude assumed by Fenianism in Ireland does not result in the speedy overthrow of the organ zation. Such acts as those to which we have ju t referred cannot tail to create strong prejudice in the public mind against Feulage ism. The better part of the community will be completely aftenated; indeed, the more respectable element in Feniauism i self-it the term can be properly applied to such an organization-must turn away from such atrocities with disgust. Thus, disided amongst them. selves, and with a strong current of public opinion setting in against them, Fenishism in Ireland may be considered as having died by its own bands. Let Gledstone and his Cabinet pursue. with firmness and moderation, the even tener of their way in Irish reforms, and ther will not have to wait very long to see public opinion in that island as Cash Assets over, $1.000,000 much opposed to Fenianism as it is in England. Such a revulsion of public mention of public mentions of public mentions as a likely to be brought about by these atrecties will not only prove the best cure for the plague which has produced them, but it will greatly tend to facilitate the acrying into affect with measures of feotim as will render a recurrence of these distressing condi- Capital & Accurted Funds - $5.950,000 CALLE Coldination and

The Michegan Street Controversy.

EDITOR BRITI & COLONIST :- As there ap pears to be some misunderstanding about how Michigan street was graded, and also about a subscription said to have been collected on the airce, let me state the fact:

In December, 1862, a subscription was made to build the bridge on the eidewalk opposite Mr Trounce's premises, and in December 1863, another subscrip i n was made by Mr Tiedeman, and he, as Deputy Road Supervisor, made use of the money in improving the road running in front of his house, which road, according to the maps, has never been honored with a name, and though he gave all his time gratis he did not rlease all parties, for the property-holders then living at the east end of Quebes street were so mortified at his taking away the earth in front of their lots that they refused to contribute what they promised him. The resu t was that that end of the road remained unfinished for several years, which was a great anacyance to all parties using that road in the winter season. Mr Tiedeman's intention was to make some part of the road still lower in order to carry off the water from Mr Lowen-berg's land and thus do away with the mecessity for the enliverts, bridges and deep ditch adjoining Mr Tiedeman's property and Superior s rest. In 1867, when the late Mr Pidwell are Road Supervisor for that dis trier, he adopted a very sensible and excel-lent system of using the road taxes to improve the touds where he collected the money as pear as he could do it and if al. Supervisors would follow that rule there would not be so much grambling a lover the Island as there is now. According to this role the road taxes collected on Michigan street were expended in grading that street, though there was not enough to complace it, and it was done improperly without any regular system, and when the defects were shown to Mr Pidwell he promised to reculfy them and finish it in the fail, but before that time arrived he unfortunately lost his life and there was an end to our street HENRY NATHAN Jr& CO grading notil lately, when some gravel has been put upon the worst part of it; and the reason why it is the worst part is that all the top soil has been taken off down to the sand and the other part of the street would most likely be as bad if served in the same way However, if the road officials will gravel as much every year I suppose we must rest satisfied, though before any more is graveled the grade ought to be changed, or it will be a greater nusiance to some parts of the street demanded by the Fenians on behalf of than if it had never been meddled with at all.
