thirty-six cents per month for sixteen candle power lights, and dwellings twenty-five cents per light, all night service. These figures are considerably less than those which re-present the cost of lighting in Bridgetown, for half a night service, and we refer the matter to the civic government for consider-ation. Bridgetown greatly needs an exten-sion of its system of street lights, and an all night service is one of the elements needed to make any public lighting system popular. It may be that the town may find a solution of the difficulty it has encountered, in dis-posing of this lighting question, in the pur-chase and operation of its own plant. -The race between Button, 2.244 and Joe did not take place on the river last Sat-urday, owing to a disagreement between the ownere or drivers as to the condition of the ice. Both the owner and the driver of Button were anxious to race, but Mr. Hicks declined to start Joe.
