

ceived similar accounts from Monongalia near Fort Pitt, says Mr. Jones, from my Brother who lives there. It is universally believed there, also, that the Welsh had lived for some time in those parts."

Mr. Jones also says that about the Year 1750, his Father and Family went to Pennsylvania, where he met with several Persons whom he knew in Wales; one in particular, with whom he had been intimate. This Person had formerly lived in Pennsylvania, but then lived in North Carolina. Upon his return to Pennsylvania, the following Year, to settle his affairs, they met a second time. Mr. Jones's friend told him that he then was very sure there were Welsh Indians: and gave for reason, that his House, in North Carolina, was situated on the great Indian Road to Charlestown, where he often lodged parties of them. In one of these parties, an Indian hearing the Family speak Welsh began to jump and caper as if he had been out of his senses. Being asked what was the matter with him, he replied, "I know an Indian Nation who speak that Language, and have learnt a little of it myself, by living among them; and when examined, he was found to have some knowledge of it. When asked where they lived, he said, "a great way beyond the Mississippi. Being promised a handsome reward, he said that he would endeavour to bring some of them to that part of the Country.
