CLEVELAND CONVENTION.

THOSE who have attended the Conventions of former years and were privileged also to be present at Cleveland, could not fail to be impressed with the decidedly improved spiritual tone pervading the sessions. A deep interest in the study of God's word was manifest, and the prominence given to Devotional exercise and Bible readings was a very pleasant feature of the Convention. We have no need to fear the permanence of any institution which makes the Word of God its basis, and follow up its work with much prayer.

The good which shall flow from this gathering cannot be measured. Seed has been sown, which shall (without doubt), produce a rich harvest. The sessions were pleasant as well as profitable, and throughout the whole period, during which the Secretaries Conference, and the General Convention was held, one predominant thought pervaded all minds. "In what way can the most good be done with the means at hand?" The delegates, as one man, spoke — worked — thought — prayed to this point, and we believe practical results will flow therefrom.

The Canadian delegates received at the hands of the Cleveland brethren and the Convention at large, a most cordial reception, and were recipients of many acts of Christian courtesy.

The first vice-presidency of the Convention was conferred upon Mr. R. Kilgour, the worthy treasurer of the Toronto Association, and the first assistant-secretaryship upon Mr. Chas. Cushing, of Montreal.

We shall not soon forget the pleasure experienced in meeting with so many earnest workers for the Master, and we earnestly pray that the year now entered upon may be one of much blessing to the young men of America.
