

The French have no fixed rate in trading brandy, some give more, some give less, but they never give as much as a quart, for a beaver. It depends on places and circumstances and on the honesty of the French trader.

REMARK :—The English do not discriminate in the quality of the Beaver, they take all at the same rate which is more than 50 per cent higher than the French, there being besides more than 100 per cent difference in the price of their trade and ours.

J. H.

THE CENTENNIAL AWARD MEDALS.

THE Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia being now closed, we present our readers with an engraving of the medal awarded to exhibitors. A special medal has been prepared for Canadian exhibitors, an engraving of which will appear in our next number. As the American Journal of Numismatics has just come to hand with a very good description of the medal, we take the liberty of inserting it in our pages.

Engravings of the Medals awarded to exhibitors at Philadelphia have appeared, and the dies have been prepared by