of John J. Stuart, who died in 1905, against the Bank of Montreal. The case was tried before Judge Latchford yesterday and judgment was reserved.

Back in 1898 John J. Stuart and J. Scott bought 33 acres of land in the north end of Hamilton. Stuart's father, John Stuart, who was then manager of the Bank of Hamilton, guaranteed his son's mortgage on the property. In 1900 he took a second mortgage. Shortly after he got into financial difficulties and the Bank of Montreal took over all his assets, including his son's property, for which he had gone security.

Now John Stuart's heirs are suing of John Stuart's mortgage.

When a Fellow's Fifty.

When a Fellow's Fifty.

In truth a man is not—or need not be old at fifty. It all depends on the man. And here is the difficulty found in classifying men by their birthdays. In dealing with such problems our scientists rarely take sufficient account of individuality. The question is, not whether a man is old at fifty, but whether Tom. Dick and Harry—individuals all—are old at that age. Tom may be and Dick and Harry may be the veriest children. Nor less Bains of Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt and Harry may be the veriest children. Nor less Bains of Manchester. The duchess, it however, that no man who has done his however, that no man who has done his however, that no man who has done his work well and lived a fairly rational life, ought to be out of the running at fifty.

derbilt disembarked at Venice and started westward in motor cars. When they reached Evian they put up at the Hotel Royal, and the duchess and Mrs. Vanderbilt, by consent. ordered for the whole party. "We will take the ordinary table-d'hote meals." they said. "but our dogs must be served a la carte. The dogs in question were Japanese spaniels from the late Mikado's kennels, and at Evian their fare came to about 11 18s per day per dog. From Evian the party motored to Ostend, found the Warrier waiting for them and went on a trip to Norway for the saimon fishing. As this might have been dull for the spaniels, a maid took the little pets from Ostend to Keylemore Castle in Ireland, to await the return of the duchess. And then people wonder at Socialists and their crusade against wealth.
